NASSER AGREES TO SUEZ DISCUSSIONS

Ammer Tells Phone Patrons Refunds May Prove Difficult

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer today renewed his suggestion that subscribers of the strike-bound Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company withhold payment of their monthly bills until the company's current labor dispute is ended.

A strike called against Ohio Consolidated by the Communications Workers of America is now in its 44th day. Little or no progress toward settlement has been reported during the past few weeks.

Ammer said he renewed his suggestion on withholding payment of bills because of a statement published over the signature of an executive of the utility. The statement said the bills for the present strike-affected service would be rendered for the full amount at this time.

Then, the company's arrangement went on, any adjustment needed to compensate for loss of service during the strike can be made after the dispute is ended.

Ike Flies Back To Washington After Vacation

Golf Achievements At Cypress Point Said Sign Of Health

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower reported in good condition by his doctor, ends a west coast vacation today and flies back to Washington to map second term campaign strategy and resume government business conferences.

Relaying word from Eisenhower's physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen the President's stay at the Cypress Point Club in this resort area has done him a great deal of good.

"The doctor says the President is feeling fine and is in good condition," Hagerty said.

Eisenhower arrived here last Thursday evening a few hours after accepting nomination for a second term at the closing session of the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

Since then there have been these developments regarding the President's health:

1. Hagerty has stated the doctors now feel Eisenhower's convalescence from major abdominal surgery which he underwent June 9 is at an end.
2. His weight, which fell off to about 157 pounds while he was hospitalized in June, climbed back to the presurgery level for the first time last week. As of four days ago he tipped the scales at 168½, a half pound more than he weighed when he entered the hospital.
3. He has resumed playing full rounds of golf, a favorite recreation which always is a good yardstick of how the President is feeling.
4. He has played 18 holes at the Cypress Point course each day for the last four. The range was four to 16 holes on any one day before he came to picturesque Pebble Beach.

IN ADVANCE of Eisenhower's departure, Hagerty still was steadfastly refusing to discuss politics and the coming campaign. And he insisted the President had put politics behind him.

Gloria Vanderbilt Marries Director

NEW YORK (AP)—Millionaire Gloria Vanderbilt, onetime "poor little rich girl" of Park Avenue, was married Monday to a television director who grew up on the lower east side.

Miss Vanderbilt and Sidney Lumet, both 32, were married in a surprise ceremony. It was her third marriage, his second.

She was previously married to Hollywood agent Pat DiCicco and white-haired orchestra conductor Leopold Stokowski. Lumet's first wife was movie actress Rita Gam. Lumet directed Miss Vanderbilt when she played last year in a summer stock production of "Picnic."

AMMER, in a letter sent to R. N. Cole, vice-president of Ohio Consolidated, advised subscribers not to follow this procedure. There is no legal basis for refunds in such matters under Ohio law, he warned.

Only way to permit full payment at this time, according to Ammer, would be to have "the company, in a statement signed by the president, agree that payment of the full bill at this time would not in any way effect a refund later, either on a complaint to the Public Utilities Commission or other means."

Ammer also noted that the question of bills for strike-affected service has been brought directly to the attention of the PUCO through a complaint filed by William D. Del Vecchio, secretary of the board of trade of Tiltonsville. The action refers, Ammer said, "to the unfair charge for telephone rental during the period in which the strike has disrupted normal telephone service."

Meanwhile, talks between union and company officials presumably remained deadlocked on several provisions of a new contract. The company told of new vandalism against telephone equipment in the Portsmouth area, and union spokesmen again denied union members are responsible for the damage.

Referring to incidents of vandalism in this area, Bill Stewart, spokesman for the striking union, said:

"We have made a thorough investigation and are positively certain that no union members are to blame for vandalism reported against phone company equipment in this locality."

Red China Sends Note On Attack

PEIPING Negative On Chance Of Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China has informed the United States Red Chinese planes shot down an aircraft off the China coast last Thursday and that apparently there are no survivors.

Secretary of State Dulles reported today the Peiping regime contends, however, that the plane downed was a Chinese Nationalist plane.

A U. S. Navy Mercator patrol plane, with a 16 man crew, has been missing since Thursday (Tokyo time) after reporting it was under attack off Red China's coast.

U. S. searchers have found wreckage and the body of one crewman, with bullet wounds.

At a news conference, Dulles said that in answer to an American inquiry through the British embassy in Peiping, Red China has conceded only that Chinese air force fighters did shoot down a plane in that general area about the time mentioned.

DULLES REPORTED that the note, as he put it, was entirely negative regarding an American inquiry about the whereabouts of any survivors.

Dulles said he read a memorandum of the Chinese reply a few hours before the news conference. He said he did not recall precisely whether the Reds stuck to a story they previously broadcast by radio that a Chinese Nationalist plane was "damaged" and then disappeared toward the sea.

Dulles said he assumes that by now, since the body of a crewman has been discovered amid wreckage, everyone knows the American plane was shot down in any event. Apparently there were no survivors, he added.

Dulles did not indicate what step the U. S. might next take. He said the Defense or State departments would make some sort of announcement as soon as all the facts are available.

There have been some demands that this country make a strong protest to Red China against the shooting, and perhaps take other action.

The department has taken the position that it first wanted to get all the facts on the case before taking any action.

Hearing Opens On Sale Of Cedar Point

SANDUSKY (AP)—Common Pleas Judge James L. McChrystal hears more testimony today on a petition that he approve sale of a controlling interest in the summer resort park at Cedar Point.

The hearing opened Monday and may last all week. In Central National Bank of Cleveland is asking the court to permit sale of 6,020 shares of stock which controls Cedar Point, long a favorite Lake Erie beach playground.

Under a trust fund set up by the G. A. Boeckling Co. and administered by Central National, the stock cannot be sold without the court's okay.

George A. Roese, Toledo investor, wants to buy it and obtain control of Cedar Point, in which 12,012 stock shares are outstanding.

The deal proposed by Roese would involve nearly $300,000, and some owners of trust fund stock have protested that price is too low.

Roese has said that if he is able to buy under stock options taken early this year, he would build a private housing development where the resort and amusement park now is located.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who asked a special session of the Legislature this summer to investigate possibilities of acquiring the property for a state park, has assigned his secretary, David E. Chatfield, to attend the hearing here. A representative of the Ohio attorney general's office also is on hand.

Check Tight Vote In Texas Election

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Texas county Democratic chairmen today canvassed the vote from Saturday's tight gubernatorial runoff primary with supporters of both U. S. Sen. Price Daniel and Ralph Yarborough looking over their shoulders in key counties.

Complete, unofficial figures to the Texas election bureau last night gave Daniel 698,125 votes and Yarborough 694,578—a lead of 3,547 for Daniel. Daniel's percentage was 50.12.

Robert Johnson, head of the bureau, said no further report would be made until Saturday unless corrections in county figures should change the lead. He said that was extremely unlikely.

Three Arrested In Los Angeles For Counterfeiting

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The $312,740 in counterfeit bills which Secret Service and FBI agents say Kenneth Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Bechtel made, didn't do them any good.

All three are in jail, charged with counterfeiting.

Guy Spaman, in charge of the Secret Service in Los Angeles, said less than 30 spurious $10 bills were circulated and the rest were recovered from one gallon glass jars hidden in nearby Brea and Mt. Baldy canyons last Aug. 19.

Moore, 29, of Compton, Calif., was arrested by FBI agents here, and Bechtel, 40, and his wife, Lena May, 26, were taken into custody in Chicago Monday.

FBI agents in Chicago said Bechtel was implicated in a $2,800 armed robbery in Phoenix, Ariz., and has been on the wanted list since Aug. 31, 1953.

THIS STRANGE scene is James Merkouris, 42, bound and gagged in superior Judge Clement D. Nye's court in Los Angeles, and Merkouris attorney, P. Basil Lambros. Merkouris is the defendant in a sanity trial, and the judge ordered him bound and gagged to halt his outbursts of shouting and profanity. Also, he slugged the prosecutor. Construction of a soundproof booth with interior hearing devices was being considered.

World News In Brief

Truce Seen Ended By Cypriot Bomb

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The end of an 11-day truce proclaimed by the Greek Cypriot underground was punctuated today by a bombing at the east coast town of Larnaca.

Authorities said the bomb damaged a house occupied by a Greek family but there were no casualties. The bombing was blamed on EOKA, the extremist underground that called the truce.

Meanwhile, the British placed Dr. Themistocles Dervis, Greek mayor of Nicosia under house arrest and searched his home and office.

They said they were investigating the mayor "as a result of information received" but did not elaborate. The mayor is an outspoken advocate of union with Greece.

Authorities also announced six convicted EOKA members were taken from Nicosia's central prison and flown to Britain to serve out the rest of their sentences.

They said the six had terrorized both their wardens and other prisoners. One convicted EOKA under life sentence escaped from the prison Monday night.

Sheppard Plea To Be Given To High Court

CLEVELAND (AP)—Attorneys for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard are expected to file an appeal today in the U. S. Supreme Court from his conviction for second-degree murder in the killing of his wife.

Defense counsel William J. Corrigan left Cleveland Monday night for Washington with a petition asking the high court to review the case.

Sheppard, now serving a life term in the Ohio penitentiary, was convicted by a jury on Dec. 21, 1954, of the bludgeoning slaying of his wife, Marilyn, on the previous July 4. Now 32, Sheppard will be eligible for parole in nine more years.

He and his family have spent about $70,000 in his defense, including a futile appeal to the Ohio Supreme Court.

In their petition to the nation's highest court, defense attorneys will claim Sheppard was unfairly convicted because of partiality by trial Judge Edward Blythin, inflammatory and hysterical publicity, error by bailiffs in allowing jurors to make phone calls during deliberations, barring of defense investigators from the murder home, and failure of the state Supreme Court to pass on constitutional questions.

They also claim the state Supreme Court was illegally constituted when Chief Justice Carl V. Weyandt disqualified himself and appointed his own substitute.

Bomber Hits Two Houses; Four Die

SANFORD, Fla. (AP)—Four persons including a 3-year-old child died when a two-engine Navy attack bomber plowed into two houses three blocks from a landing field Monday.

Sue Lowe, the child, was burned to death on the porch of the wrecked home where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lowe. The Lowes and their son, David, 4, were hospitalized with severe burns.

The three-man crew of the bomber also died in the crash and fire that followed.

Fireworks Blast Burns Are Fatal

AKRON (AP)—Severely burned in an explosion and fire at the American Fireworks Co. north of Hudson, Dominic Colivito, 74, died early today in St. Thomas Hospital.

Colivito had been working with powder in the manufacture of a display device, in a building about 10 by 14 feet.

An explosion wrecked the building, and in the fire which followed the man was burned over about three-fourths of his body.

Adlai Appeals For Precinct Support

Turns Campaign Sights Northwest After New Mexico Conference

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, hitting hard at the importance of organizing at the precinct level, headed today for the northwest on the second leg of a whirlwind precampaign tour.

The next stop for the Democratic presidential nominee and his running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, was Portland, Ore. Then, after a motor trip to Bonneville Dam, they are to confer with party leaders from Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and Utah.

By nightfall they are to be on the way again, taking off in their chartered plane for Sioux City, Iowa.

The first of a series of powwows with Democratic leaders was held here Monday, and afterward Stevenson pronounced it "even more satisfactory than I thought was possible."

"The enthusiasm and the spirit of the party in the southwest has exhilarated me," he told newsmen.

Maryland Dems Pick Mahoney

He'll Make Race In Tydings' Place

BALTIMORE (AP)—George P. Mahoney, who narrowly lost the Democratic primary last May, has been picked to replace the ailing Millard E. Tydings as the party's candidate for the U. S. Senate.

The state Democratic committee, by a 97-55 vote, selected the 54-year-old Baltimore contractor over Mrs. Eleanor Tydings, wife of the former senator and daughter of former U. S. Ambassador to Russia Joseph E. Davies.

Early today, Mahoney said he would revive the bitter 1950 campaign between Tydings and Republican Sen. John Marshall Butler as an issue.

"I'm going to take out after Butler throughout this state and make sure the people know about the fraud perpetrated on Tydings six years ago," he said.

Committee members were urged by Mrs. Tydings' supporters to name her so she might carry on her husband's vengeance campaign against Butler.

Lausche Assails Bender's Use Of Franking Rights

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has termed free use of the mails by his opponent in the senatorial election campaign a "trespass upon the rights of taxpayers."

The Democratic governor referred to a weekly information letter mailed by Republican U. S. Sen. George H. Bender under his franking privilege.

Lausche is seeking to unseat Bender in the Nov. 6 election.

The governor told newsmen:

"Within the last three months, I have had at least 75 letters from citizens to whom Sen. Bender has sent his weekly bulletin asking me how under the franking privilege political propaganda can be legal and morally distributed."

"I answered all of them telling them that in my judgment there definitely is a trespass upon the rights of the taxpayers when congressmen free of charge use the federal postal service to promote their personal whims and objectives."

"The problem takes on added sharpness in face of the fact that Congress is increasing the rates on some classes of mail service while some of its members are abusing the franking privilege."

Juveniles Held In Fake Shooting

AKRON (AP)—Six teen-agers who staged a fake shooting and threw a "body" off the North Main Street viaduct late Monday were rounded up by detectives and held in the juvenile detention home.

The boys were quoted as saying, "We didn't realize how serious it might have been" and "we just wanted to have some fun."

A motorist witnessed the incident, which involved the use of cap guns. Then a dummy, splashed with red paint and bound with a chain, was tossed over the viaduct railing, landing 180 feet below on the pavement.

Sends Letter Of Acceptance To Committee Head

Egypt's President Fails To Specify Any Place, Date

LONDON (AP)—Egypt agreed today to meet with a committee charged with presenting a proposal for international control of the Suez Canal but made no commitment to accept the plan.

President Nasser made known his willingness to see the five-nation committee in a terse letter to its chairman, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia. He mentioned neither time nor place for the meeting.

The letter did not bear out an earlier report from Egyptian officials that Nasser had specified Cairo as the site for the meeting.

On the strength of this report, a spokesman for the committee had indicated the members were ready to fly to Cairo almost immediately.

On getting Nasser's reply, Menzies went to 10 Downing St., residence of Prime Minister Eden where the cabinet was in session. The cabinet was informed of Nasser's reply and the meeting broke up soon after.

THE COMMITTEE

was named by 18 of the 22 nations attending the recent Suez conference in London.

It was assigned the task of presenting the majority proposals to Nasser for an international board to run the canal. The plan would make Egypt a member of the board and link the agency to the United Nations.

Nasser has said that Egypt will keep the canal open to all shipping. Reports from Cairo said he would offer treaty guarantees to back up his promise.

In the background remained the key question of what the West would do next if Nasser, after meeting with the committee, still refused to yield the waterway to international control.

Britain and France are continuing to reinforce their military forces in the Eastern Mediterranean. They considered likely that a deadlock over the canal would bring economic rather than military moves against Egypt.

THE ALREADY tense situation between Britain and Egypt was whetted by the arrest in Cairo of two British subjects on charges of espionage. At least one Egyptian also was arrested and accused of being a member of an alleged spy ring.

The Britons are James Swinburn, 51, business manager of the British-owned Arab News Agency, and Charles Pittuck, an official of the Marconi radio-telegraph Co. of Egypt.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said he was awaiting a full report before deciding whether to file a formal protest. But a British spokesman in Cairo flatly denied the embassy.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"BUG ABOUT TO BE TOLLED OFF"

The Bell is an instrument that's been around for quite a while and has been used since ancient times to provide both music and alarms. Some of the more famous bells are the Liberty Bell, Big Ben and Alexander Graham Bell. But there are a lot of bells that helped make history that no one ever thinks about. For instance, the bell on the alarm clock that woke up Paul Revere. Or the first Good Humor Bell or the one that was on Mrs. O'Leary's cow, or the one on Zsa Zsa Gabor's telephone. But the most amazing bell I ever saw is the one my landlady, Mrs. Goonsgarten, uses to let us boarders know when dinner is ready. It's made out of sponge rubber.

Sends Letter Of Acceptance To Committee Head

There was in any way involved with the alleged spy ring. Hundreds of wives and children of Britons working in Egypt have been evacuated since the seizure of the canal, and both Britain and France have advised all their people there to leave unless they have compelling reasons for staying.

One of three Western correspondents expelled from Egypt Sunday, William Stevenson of the Toronto, Ont., Star, published the dispatch his paper said had caused his ouster. In it he reported THAT German Nazis are "everywhere and everything in Egypt today."

"Their names—famous names—float above barroom conversations but never appear on office doors," Stevenson wrote. "The shadow Egyptian general staff is composed of Germans whose Nazi jackboots crunched across Europe."

Patrol Adds More Unmarked Autos

WARREN (AP)—The state highway patrol is doubling the number of "unmarked" patrol cars it has in service on highways throughout the state, Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent, has announced. He did not give specific figures.

He said the special cars have been especially effective in breaking up hot rod and drag races since they were put into service last June.

Unlike the regular patrol cars, the special cars have no roof siren light and are minus the foot high body lettering.

To comply with a state law requiring the marking of police cars, the special cars are marked only with the words "State Highway Patrol" in two inch letters.

Geauga County Seeks To Toughen Traffic Penalties

CHARDON (AP)—Law enforcement officers of Geauga County are letting it be known in no uncertain terms they want the reputation of being "tough" on drunk drivers and those who cross the yellow warning line.

Three dozen mayors and justices of the peace, at a session in the Common Pleas Court room, unanimously resolved to apply a penalty of at least seven days in jail and $200 and costs on anyone convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Although there was no formal action on the type of penalty desired for crossing the yellow highway line—which warns motorists it is unsafe to pull out to the left—there was considerable discussion of going higher than the usual $10 and costs.

County Prosecutor James W. Dinsmore, who served as chairman, said that in the past some justices have given strong penalties and some have not.

He declared that "if Geauga County can get the reputation of being tough" there could be a reduction in traffic violations.

Sheriff E. John Phelps, who had called the meeting, said most of the persons arrested for drunk driving were from outside the county.

Soon after September 1, all meter readers of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company will sport new uniforms.

This will mark the first time that all of the company's meter readers have been uniformly attired. In addition to the obvious appeal of the design, these uniforms will serve as a ready identification for meter readers.

The summer uniforms, now being delivered, consist of a cap, blue-gray trousers and light blue sport shirts with company insignia. The winter uniforms include dress shirts, neckties, trousers, jacket and a pea jacket for colder weather.

Eisenhower undoubtedly will get together with party leaders in the next few days to talk over campaign plans.

The leaders will include Vice President Nixon, who also was nominated for a second term at San Francisco, and Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Hall said several weeks ago the GOP campaign will get started about Sept. 15 and that the President will make five or six nationwide television and radio addresses, some outside of Washington, with barnstorming and "whistle stop" talks ruled out.

At a San Francisco news conference, Eisenhower said he had no plans beyond those Hall had announced. But GOP congressional candidates reported they got the impression the President's campaign will be on a somewhat broader basis.

Fair Exhibit Shows Way To Step Up Corn

Pickaway County farmers who want to step up their corn yields will be especially interested in one of the great array of exhibits at the Ohio State Fair.

The exhibit dealing with increased corn yields occupies about 40 feet of wall space in the Junior Fair Exhibits building, and is headed "Corn Yield Climbs by Management."

Seven show windows, illustrating the different practices, light up to explain how yields climb with the use of good hybrids, manure, sod crops, organic matter, proper drainage, good tillage and more fertilizer.

John Slipshier, Ohio State University extension conservationist in charge of the exhibit, points out that for 70 years Ohio's corn yield held constant at 37 bushels an acre. Then it surged upward a full 12 bushels as a result of a single factor—hybrid corn. Slipshier says other opportunities now offer substantial gains. The purpose of the exhibit, he notes, is to list and appraise these opportunities.

The Ohio State University Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring the exhibit.

Search For Seven Who Bailed Out Of Stricken Plane

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Air Force and Civil Air Patrol planes continued an intensified search of the frigid waters of Cook Inlet today for seven airmen who parachuted from a crippled KC97 Stratotanker.

The seven airmen and Lt. Robert L. Moore of Altus, Okla., the pilot, bailed out of the aerial fueling plane Monday. Moore was found on bleak Fire Island, 14 miles from here. He suffered only minor injuries.

It was feared the other men floated down into the water, and their chances of survival in the bone-chilling inlet would be slim.

The pilot of the Stratotanker, Capt. Alva L. Wilkerson, also of Altus, Okla., glided the plane into a safe landing at Elmendorf Air Force Base after the bailout.

The plane was a Strategic Air Command craft stationed at Altus, Okla., AFB.

The seven missing were identified by Altus AFB, including M. Sgt. F. D. Schmidt, Negley, O.

Detroit Abortion Ring Broken; Four Persons Charged

DETROIT (AP)—Two doctors, two nurses and 16 women patients were caught Monday in a raid that broke "the most prolific abortion ring yet uncovered in Detroit," Homicide Inspector Thomas Co-chill said.

He said the 16 women had either returned to the offices for post-operative checkups or were awaiting abortions.

Cochill identified those held on charges of conspiracy to commit illegal operations as Dr. Edgar B. Keemer, 43; Dr. Gilbert Edwards, 50; Mrs. Loretta Swanson, 35; and Mrs. Loretta Swanson, 35.

The homicide inspector said Keemer was charged with manslaughter in 1953 following the abortion death of a 19-year-old girl, but the case was thrown out of court because of insufficient evidence.

Cochill said Mrs. Hurley was the office nurse and Mrs. Swanson operated a post-operative hospital in her basement apartment.

Reid Asks Public Support For Fair

Ag Society's Secretary Claims Display Tops Others In Quality

Henry Reid, secretary of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, told local Kiwanians last night that this year's county fair is certain to top all others if public interest can be stirred in behalf of the big display.

Reid was main speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Circleville Kiwanis Club.

All that is needed to put the 1956 fair "into the black," Reid told the Kiwanians, is public support in the form of attendance.

He indicated the fair already has adequate assistance in the way of construction help and similar aid at the fairgrounds.

Reid pointed out that local clubs and community groups have a tremendous influence in generating public interest, and that they can be of tremendous help to the fair in this respect.

THE STATE OF Ohio, Reid noted, is known as the "King's Row of County Fairs" because of the high caliber of its annual rural exhibitions. And despite this high class competition, he said, the Pickaway County fair is second to none in this region when judged solely on the quality of its display.

Reid traced briefly the story of county fairs—how they grew from trading centers to giant agricultural displays, and from a group of farm exhibits into a big program of competition for farmers, 4-H and FFA youths, housewives and businessmen.

Reid explained to the Kiwanians how leadership of the Pickaway County Fair is controlled by directors selected for the society. Voting is restricted to members of the society, he emphasized, but any resident of the county may become a member for the nominal fee of $1.50.

The fair board secretary said the general public does not realize that the bulk of the fair's income—in excess of $14,000 last year—goes toward premium awards, while the balance is used to pay for labor, tents, water, electricity, insurance and similar needs.

Feature attractions of the four-day 1956 fair, which opens Sept. 12 include horse-shoe pitching, with a "repeat contest" arranged between Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sennebrunner of Columbus and Circleville Mayor Bob Hedges. A pond is being planned and may be ready for the bait casters, Reid said.

On Friday afternoon of the fair, two county six-man football contests are scheduled.

THE TRACTOR pull, a western horse show, a flower display, exhibits by 43 merchants, and a program of harness racing on three nights of the fair are also included in the highlights.

Reid told Kiwanis that a new feature this year will be the "Home Demonstration Show", which will provide demonstrations and prizes in cooking, sewing, freezing and pie-baking.

A "drunk" driving accusation and two cases of reckless operation were the only cases heard in Circleville Municipal Court today.

Vasco Brown, 47, of Stoutsville Route 1 was fined $150 and costs, sentenced to five days in jail and had his driver's license suspended one year for the "drunk" driving violation. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Claude Richard Purdue of Shadeville was fined $25 and costs for reckless operation. He was arrested by Radcliff.

Thomas R. Hailey, 19, of Upland, Ind. was also fined $25 and costs for a reckless operation charge. He was arrested by Officer Don Adams.

McManus said the case developed after Dr. Sterling Taylor, acting medical examiner, reported the Kapsinow child had suffered head and body injuries, apparently caused when she was "picked up and shaken violently."

After several hours of questioning, police said Miss Jaspers admitted shaking the Kapsinow child to death.

Then, police said, she admitted: Causing the death in 1948 of the 7-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hubbard of Guilford.

Dem Nominee For Governor Is Center Of New Illinois Upset

CHICAGO (AP)—Herbert C. Paschen, still undecided whether to withdraw as Democratic nominee for governor, is to appear before the Cook County grand jury today to explain a controversial $29,000 employees fund in the Cook County treasurer's office, which he heads.

Two investigators for the U. S. Senate banking and currency committee, meanwhile, announced they also plan to question the 61-year-old politician about the employees fund solicited from bankers.

Robert A. Wallace, committee staff director, and committee counsel Matthew Hale, said they are seeking to determine if national banks violated federal law by contributing to campaign funds.

Paschen said he ordered money in the fund returned to contributors. He has fired two aides who administered the fund.

Disclosure of the fund has brought pressure from state Democratic leaders for Paschen to quit his race for governor. The nominee said Sunday he would decide in "the next two days" whether he will remain in the Nov. 6 contest against Republican Gov. William G. Stratton.

Paschen alone, as winner of the April primary election, can decide whether to continue in the race or quit. Should he withdraw, the vacancy would be filled only by vote of the full Democratic state committee.

Paschen has denied wrongdoing in connection with the fund. He said it was used for the welfare of his office's employees.

In other developments, a woman taxpayer who sued former Republican State Auditor Orville E.

Hartman Again Stresses Sked For Beginners

Superintendent of City Schools

George A. Hartman today urged Circleville parents who plan to enter children in kindergarten classes to follow the pre-school schedule. A copy of the schedule was mailed to all parents concerned.

The school head again reminded parents that next Tuesday will be the first day of kindergarten. Parents are requested to bring their children to this first session and to check registration forms for possible changes.

Children registered for the morning session will come from 9 to 10, and the afternoon group will come from 1 to 2. Those who have not registered previously are asked to be present at 10-11 a. m. or 2-3 p. m.

No kindergarten activity is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 5.

THURSDAY and Friday, Sept. 6 and 7, children will meet from 9 until 10 for the morning sessions and from 1 until 2 in the afternoon. Children are to remain by themselves at the school on these two days.

Regular classes will begin Monday, Sept. 10. Children in the morning group will meet from 9 to 11:30 and the afternoon group from 1 until 3:15.

Hartman recommended that children arrive at school five minutes prior to the beginning of classes. He also reminded parents to call promptly for their children at the end of each session.

Negro Leader Of Bus Boycott Is Arrested Again

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The leader of Tallahassee's Negro boycott against city buses was arrested today for the second day in a row for driving a car pool automobile without a "for hire" tag.

The Rev. C. K. Steele was taken to the police station and was released on $100 bond, pending a hearing.

Steele is president of the Negro Inter Civic Council which has sponsored the three-month-old boycott.

State Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin ruled recently that automobiles operated in the car pool must carry "for hire" tags since they are primarily engaged in transporting passengers.

The boycott was called May 28 in protest against segregated seating, required by state law.

Asserts Russian Propaganda Made Any Settlement Difficult

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today Russia has been waging a propaganda campaign to make it extremely difficult for Egyptian President Nasser to negotiate a satisfactory settlement of the Suez Canal crisis.

The Soviet Union, Dulles said, stood out alone among the 22 nations which attended the London Suez conference as a country

New Boston Will Protect Phone Office

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—The police chief of nearby New Boston assured the struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. his department would provide protection for a reopening of the New Boston exchange. It is the only exchange now closed by the 44-day strike.

Chief Fred Brown informed Ohio Consolidated Vice President R. N. Cole his department will keep order, but declared he will not accept company "dictation" on how he will do it.

Cole recently declared the company will not operate at New Boston until police provide protection. Chief Brown told Cole:

"I do not feel that your experience in running a telephone company qualifies you to dictate the method of operation of a police department and so long as we maintain order, how we do it is our concern."

"You have been very unfair to the New Boston police department in an effort to create the feeling that the telephone exchange is closed because the New Boston police will not give you protection."

"We have offered and still offer the most efficient protection at our command. We are having no trouble here and do not expect any."

On Aug. 16, a group of unidentified hoodlums tossed bricks at exchanges in New Boston, Portsmouth and Sciotoville. Since then, Portsmouth police have posted day and night guards at the Portsmouth and Sciotoville exchanges.

Asked about this Dulles said that as far as the records disclose, and he had made a search himself, there was no such offer made.

Sen. Smathers Not Bothered By Lausche Talk

But Some Leaders
In Both Parties
Indicate Irritation

By JAMES B. SIBBISON

WASHINGTON (AP)—GOP party professionals just can't conceal their irritation at the "political independence" of Ohio Gov. Frank J. Lausche. Some Democrats get riled at it, too.

"Political chameleon" and "part-time Democrat" are just two of the things Lausche's rival in the fall campaign, Sen. George H. Bender, calls him.

And Democratic Chairman Paul M. Butler has severely criticized Lausche for not being what he considers a real Democrat.

This sort of talk doesn't impress George Smathers at all. A Democratic senator from Florida, Smathers says he earnestly hopes Lausche will join him and his fellow senators next year. Moreover, he thinks he will.

Now it's Smathers' job, as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, to help senatorial candidates of his party get elected this fall.

This assistance, he says, certainly will go to Lausche, if he wants it, in spite of the governor's assertion that he is in doubt whether he would vote with the GOP or the Democrats in organizing the Senate.

"So far as I'm concerned," said the tall, handsome Smathers, "I don't have any worry about how he'll vote."

"He's an independent Democrat, but a Democrat, nonetheless. I believe when he gets here he'll vote Democratic."

As for Butler's criticism of Lausche, Smathers says he isn't swayed at all by that.

"Butler is a splendid man," said Smathers, "and a fine national chairman. But he doesn't know the problems of having to appeal to a lot of different people in a campaign. For my own part, I'm not going to pass judgement on Lausche."

It's Smathers' belief—like that of a lot of southerners in congress—that a senator has the right to disagree frequently with the party leadership.

"Otherwise," he says, "the national chairman might as well get together on legislation and decide issues like a poker game, with each one showing so many votes."

Smathers also has a personal reason for favoring Lausche. As he recalls it, Lausche's wife, Jane, sat on the platform at Del Ray Beach in Florida in 1950 when Smathers was campaigning against Claude Pepper.

"I saw him twice on social occasions at the Democratic convention, too," said Smathers.

"I asked him if he needed any help. But he said he didn't. He said he believes things are coming along very satisfactorily."

State Fair In Its Fifth Day; Attendance Records Fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Attendance at the 1956 Ohio State Fair continued to smash records as the big show went into its fifth day today dedicated to farm organization.

Principal activities were to be at the Youth Center where Camp Fire Girl demonstrations, a 4-H style revue and FFA demonstrations were scheduled.

An estimated 60,000 visitors Monday kept the fair ahead of last year's record 44,000 for the corresponding day. Thus far, fair attendance has eclipsed previous record totals for each day. Official attendance for the first three days was 359,194, or 129,000 more than the attendance for the corresponding period in 1955.

championship for ewes with an entry in that aged class.

Wreckage In Auto Crash Turned Into Flaming Bier

TOOELE, Utah (AP)—Three men died in the crash of their car with a gasoline tank truck Monday night at a highway junction nine miles north of here.

Officers said an unknown passing motorist tossed a lighted match onto spilled gasoline before two of the bodies could be extricated. The resulting blaze cremated the bodies and took 2½ hours to bring under control.

It was several hours before the Utah Highway Patrol could issue a tentative identification of the dead. The three, all Salt Lake City men, were listed as Lee Loy Park, owner of the car, Tommy Lau and Lau Chin, ages unknown.

Highway Patrolman Howard Cooper said one body had been removed from the car and officers were waiting for acetylene torch equipment to free the other dead when the wreckage was set ablaze. He said all three were killed in the crash.

Glen Townsend, 28, Salt Lake City, driver of the truck, was not seriously hurt.

Aircraft Survives Engine Failure

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—An Air Force plane with 19 men aboard lost the use of two of its four engines while 450 miles at sea Monday night, but the damage was repaired in flight.

The engines of the giant Constellation radar plane apparently cut because of a short circuit, a failing, Air Force men said, which was repaired from within the plane.

The Air Force plane, which was on a routine patrol, landed safely.

PROTECTED CAR DEALERS

AUTOMOBILE dealers have complained for years that the factories loaded them with cars which they were forced to move at cut-rate prices, thus denying them fair profits. After a long lobbying effort, the dealers succeeded in getting the recent session of Congress to enact a law.

The new law provides that if a manufacturer "intimidates" a dealer or employs methods that impair the value of a dealer's franchise, the dealer may seek redress in court. A franchise may not be cancelled by a manufacturer without giving the dealer a chance to fight back.

President Eisenhower signed this bill with doubts about its constitutionality. It is special interest legislation. A similar Colorado state law was ruled unconstitutional in a federal court.

However the law works out, it does not reach the heart of the trouble, which is rising competition. Not only are more than 5 million new automobiles offered for sale annually, but an approximately equal number of traded-in used cars must be resold. How to get both new and used cars off his hands is the dealer's problem. Competition will trim his profits regardless of factory attitudes.

Automobile dealers will welcome the opportunity to seek redress when manufacturers order them to do thus and so, or else. But whether federal courts, which have upheld fair trade laws under which manufacturers dictate prices to dealers, can also uphold this law remains to be seen.

INDIVIDUALISM'S PENALTIES

THERE WAS something to tickle the individualistic fancy about southern Oregon's Stumbo clan stumping the Oregon Highway Commission about a contested strip of highway.

Robert G. Stumbo, spokesman for the clan of brothers and cousins, made the commission admit that the Stumbos actually own 16 feet of busy U. S. Highway 99 near Wolf Creek, Ore. Furthermore, the clan announced it just might operate a toll road, and in fact held up traffic for an hour by stretching a rope across their property and putting up a big "private property" sign.

All of this smacks of America's early days of rugged individualism and it isn't difficult to enjoy the dismay of bureaucrats in Oregon's officialdom at being outwitted by the Stumbos.

The only catch is that it wouldn't have been funny to have been one of the dozens of motorists held up by the Stumbo claim. Nor would the idea of a toll road for 16 feet be popular, even if it were conceivable that the state would not condemn the stretch of ground involved. The Stumbo story illustrates that in this increasingly crowded country one man's individualism may be many other persons' annoyance.

It is a pity but that seems to be the way of civilization.

One statesman wants a constitutional amendment prohibiting deficits. What on earth would candidates promise the voters then?

These Days

I was reading a circular of an American-Canadian investment fund which are proliferating like rabbits, when I came across this paragraph relating to the primary objective for the fund:

"To operate in such a way that the shareholders will incur only minimum taxes and the Fund will incur no United States tax liability and only relatively small tax liability to Canada and other countries."

It has been suggested to me that there is nothing wrong in thinking up a gimmick to save money on taxes. Of course, there is nothing morally or legally wrong with that, except that when the rest of us have to carry a heavy load because we earn wages, we are not excited about those who are able to shift the load from themselves to us.

If a tax is to be socially right, it should be equally collected. If those who possess reservoirs of capital can shift their funds to Canada or Liberia or Panama or wherever and thus avoid paying an equal tax with other citizens, it can only mean that the others have to pay more.

I do not mention the name of this particular fund, first, because I am not advertising it for prospective investors and secondly because there are many such funds and they are all pretty much alike. I have its brochure before me and this paragraph is particularly interesting:

"The Fund intends so to conduct its affairs that it will incur no tax liability to the United States, since it does not intend (1) to engage in trade or business in the United States within the meaning of the United States Internal Revenue Code, (2) to have a permanent establishment in the United States within the meaning of the tax treaty between the United States and Canada or (3) to have any income arising from sources within the United States which would be subject to United States taxes."

The Government of the United States has very little information on the movement of money in and out of the country. A statement prepared by M. Joseph Meehan, Director, Office of Business Economics of the U. S. Department of Commerce, read before the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security, contained these paragraphs which are a realistic appraisal of the situation:

"Our present sources of information on the acquisition and sale by foreigners of controlling interests in United States companies are incomplete. Withholding-tax records apply only to enterprises paying dividends to foreign residents.

"When purchases or sales are deliberately concealed, we would have no means to discover them. Moreover, even when we know that an enterprise is wholly or partially controlled by foreign interests our questionnaires are not always answered."

Walther Lederer, Chief of the Balance of Payments Division of the Department of Commerce, estimated that the minimum foreign investment in American industry is $11,000,000,000. Chairman Armstrong of the SEC had put the figure at $26,000,000,000. These figures are not divergent; they represent the inclusion of different entities, but no matter what data one studies, the fact emerges that Canada and Switzerland are excellent tax sanctuaries for American money which can then come back into this country in the form of Canadian, Swiss or other national investments and avoid the payment of taxes.

CHAPTER 32

AS STELLA and Newell McCrillis came through the door, Newell accepted Chad's dark-rimmed glasses, put them on, and nodded cheerfully to Dr. Wilkins-Smith, who looked more and more like an exceedingly sick man.

"Why, hello, Doctor!" Stella said pleasantly. "I didn't know you were here."

She smiled with equal friendliness upon John Blandin, who gave her his chair and joined Newell on the wide window sill.

"This is a discussion, Mrs. McCrillis," Chad told her, "not a trial, or anything like that. But you know of course that a law suit has been brought against this clinic and the doctors connected with it. You know that your examination here, and your experience at the County Hospital, occasioned that charge of malpractice. Now, of course, I can testify—present to this group—an account of what the clinic did for you here. Its clinical examination of you, its microscopic tissue tests, and its diagnosis. We send our patients to a hospital or to a doctor with a brief account of our findings, and sometimes with suggestions. We gave you such a report—and you took yours to the County Hospital."

"Did you tell her to?" asked the big sandy-haired lawyer on Wilkins-Smith's right side.

Chad smiled at him. Then he turned back to Stella. "Now, Mrs. McCrillis," he said gently, "will you please tell the gentlemen here what happened at the hospital, whom you saw, what was done, and so forth?"

"Dr. Mays will have told you what to say," drawled the same lawyer.

Stella looked at him. "We were asked to come to the clinic this afternoon," she said quietly, and firmly, "because of this meeting. No one told me what to say. I got the general impression that I might be asked to undergo further tests and examinations—by outside doctors, you know? Her fingertips rested upon the white bandage which showed above the collar of her green dress.

The big lawyer subsided. Stella's eyes fell for a minute upon the man in the Palm Beach suit. He was writing busily upon a pad of white paper. She glanced around at Newell, at Chad, then lifted her head and began to speak.

he had talked to me for a bit, he told me to brace myself, that he would have to tell me, honestly, that I had cancer.

"I just sat there for a minute. Of course the word itself was a shock. But mostly I wondered how he knew. He'd looked at my neck, but that was all. And you'd think he would make some tests, wouldn't you? What with the clinic's recommendation—and if he really did feel it was a serious case?"

"Yes, Stella," said Chad softly, "we'd think he would be more thorough."

"Well, anyway," she continued, "he thought the word cancer was scaring me, and he quickly said I was not to worry, he could cure it. By that time, my wits were working, and I reminded him that the clinic had said my condition was not serious but had recommended tests. He looked sort of mad, and leaned toward me."

She paused in troubled thought. "And then," she resumed slowly, "he said that the Clinic's opinion was worthless, that the whole thing amounted to a fraud. He said it sort of sadly, adding that he'd had twenty years of experience with cases like mine. He said he'd found that the clinic was making a lot of mistakes, and he felt that something should be done about it, to protect the public. Then he went on to ask me if I would be willing to co-operate with him in a project which he had in mind."

She glanced briefly toward Dr. Wilkins-Smith, and color rose in her cheeks. She put one hand to her throat.

"He sounded very noble," she said faintly. "And he asked me if I would be willing to co-operate in a suit he planned to bring against the clinic—because, you know, of what he called its superficial examinations and its attempt to diagnose such things as TB and cancer and heart trouble. He called the whole thing a vicious movement trafficking with the health of our community. He said that he needed a clear-cut example of mistaken diagnosis, and mine seemed tailor-made. He explained that he meant to finance the suit personally, and he hoped that I also had the interest of my neighbors at heart to co-operate. He said he would give my case extra-special care. In time..."

Even Good Drivers Must Have Eyes Checked Often

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

WHO are the better drivers, men or women? The Better Vision Institute has come up with some evidence which I think is important in this controversy.

Estimating Differences

A recent study, according to the Institute, indicates that men can estimate distances more accurately than women can. It also shows that men have a slight edge in judgment of speed.

For the tests, 54 men and an equal number of women were measured for visual acuity, distance judgment and speed estimation. Three different instruments were used.

Ages of the subjects ranged from 18 to 61 years. Mean age of the men was 29.56 and of the women, 30.78.

Distance Judgment

Those with good far-point visual acuity were found to be considerably better than the others in distance judgment and a little better in estimating speed.

Strangely enough, driving experience had no substantial relationship to either of these skills.

Apparently unless the average driver has special training he improves very little in distance judgment and speed estimation once he learns how to drive.

Proficiency in estimating distance and speed, of course, helps any driver avoid accidents.

If the men are better at these than women are, well, draw your own conclusion.

One thing I will say, though, is that all drivers should have regular eye examinations at frequent intervals. Anyone with faulty vision should never take a chance where his safety may depend on judging distance and speed.

And remember, 20/20 vision doesn't necessarily mean that your eyesight is perfect.

A samll boy invaded a big store's lingerie section and shyly presented his problem to a lady clerk. "I want to buy mom a surprise present of a slip," he said, "but I forgot what size she wears." The clerk said, "It would help to know if your mom is tall or short, fat or skinny." "She's just perfect!" beamed the small boy, so the clerk wrapped up a size 34 for him.

Four Fists Now Needed

NEW YORK (AP)—A new figure of heroic stature looms on the American political horizon—the two-fisted vice president.

In the past it hasn't made much difference whether the President's harness mate had two heads or ten thumbs, as he didn't count much anyway. His main problem was to make the appropriate noises while presiding over the U. S. Senate.

Only one man in history has made a really memorable utterance while serving as stall mouse for the occupant of the White House. He was Thomas Riley Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson. Marshall all escaped oblivion as the result of his daring remark, "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

But the situation has now changed. The voters seem sold on the idea that what this country needs is not a vice president who merely yearns for a good five-cent cigar, but one who will get in there with bare knuckles and fight for it.

Perhaps the biggest result of the 1956 national political conventions is that both Republicans and Democrats now agree on this — running the executive branch of the federal government has become a four-fisted job.

The President's two fists are no longer enough. His veep must have fists, too.

Considering the proven political pugnacity of the two present rival candidates for vice president—Estes Kefauver and Dick Nixon—the nation may even wind up with a veep who gives the appearance of having triple fists.

Commenting on the new trend, a television pundit pontificated: "There will be no throttle bottoms." He was referring to Alexander Throttlebottom, the amiable, bumbling, vice presidential nonentity in the Broadway Musical, "Of Thee I Sing."

But what about the mother of a little boy who doesn't want to get in there and slug? Can she no longer hope her son will grow up and become a vice president? Perhaps not in national politics. But the little lad still has a future in industry.

There must be several hundred thousand vice presidents in the business world. Many are harmless souls who dwell in upholstered swivel chairs and spend the day scribbling memos to their private secretary to be sure that no one without proper authorization uses the office pencil sharpener.

Yet they fill a need, and pure chaos would follow if they all were infected at once with the theory they should become two-fisted veeps.

Aggressive heads of business organizations sometimes like to surround themselves with these Throttlebottoms on the reasonable assumption, "with guys like that around I have to look good — if only by contrast."

During the summer months, because of the trend toward carefree easy meals, certain foods find general use. Among those foods bought by most homemakers are cold cuts and cheese, because they offer such variety and are convenient to use. To stand at the cases in the supermarket and look at the number of varieties of each of these foods is a revelation. Displays are enticing and usually we buy more than we need.

During hot weather, when most home refrigerators are stocked with both cheese and cold cuts, care must be given in storing these foods to keep optimum quality. Special care must be given the cold meats especially, as they are usually sliced and lose quality quickly if not properly wrapped and stored.

For a wrap, the transparent plastic household film is ideal. It molds itself around the cheese or meat, keeping air out and moist goodness in. For the opened packages of sliced meat, make certain that the slices are placed one on top of another compactly before wrapping with saran. Sliced cheese, too, should be handled the same way.

Other advantages of using this transparent plastic film for wrapping such foods as meat and cheese are: the odor of strong cheese and garlic in some meats will not be absorbed by other foods in the refrigerator; and due to the "see-through" quality of the wrap, there will be no difficulty in finding the type of meat or cheese that you want because each can be readily identified through the film.

WASHINGTON (AP)—An era ended and another began in 1932. Now, 24 years later, the two presidential candidates of 1956, President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson, see a brand new era ahead.

But there is a difference between the way the Democrats and Republicans approached the new era in 1932 and the way Eisenhower and Stevenson look forward to the years immediately ahead.

In 1932 the Republicans drowning in the great depression, lacked fresh ideas. That same year the Democratic platform was short and direct. It promised action of a new kind on many fronts.

The Democrats won. They changed the course of American life and established definitely the principle of government responsibility for the general welfare.

President Herbert Hoover, running for re-election against Franklin D. Roosevelt, said: "This campaign is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government."

"Our opponents . . . are proposing changes and so-called new deals which would destroy the very foundations of our American system . . ."

Roosevelt saw it otherwise. Accepting the Democratic nomination, he said: "I pledge you, I pledge myself to a new deal for the American people." And later: "The country needs, and unless I mistake its temper, the country demands, bold, persistent experimentation."

There followed under Roosevelt the long list of New Deal programs and adjustments in American living: Social Security, the Wagner Act, the 40-hour week, controls over business, the reciprocal trade law.

Much that seemed radical in these programs at the time — or was called radical — actually had roots in federal or state programs enacted into law in related fields years before. And the New Deal social programs, instead of being new, were only bringing the United States abreast of the advanced European countries.

For years afterward Republicans fought, in whole or piecemeal, the New Deal and later the "Fair Deal" which was an extension of it. In time they recognized — but not too clearly until Eisenhower became president — that the New and Fair Deals were simply bringing the United States up to date and laying the basic foundations for the future.

Under Eisenhower the Republicans adopted basic programs of both the New and Fair Deals and even extended them.

Thus both parties are abreast of each other and in that sense an era has ended, for the New Deal and Fair Deal programs have become a broad foundation for the future.

Neither party is offering now — as Roosevelt did in 1932 — broad new fields of experimentation. They are accepting what has been done in the past and proposing to extend it. Neither party's program this year offers anything which essentially is different from the other's.

So at midcentury both parties, standing on the broad base already laid, are pulling in the same direction.

Midwestern farmers traditionally store huge amounts of corn for feed, for government loans and for possible higher prices.

This seasonal need for more corn cribs creates a problem for Corn Belt farmers who must build and harvest in the same busy season. Pole-type corn cribs are filling the requirements on many farms because of their speed of erection as well as low cost. They also fit well into modern farm mechanical handling operations.

Because they are built on a framework of poles, pole-type corn cribs cost less than conventional buildings. They can be permanent and have superior wind resistance, but the farmer can also easily convert the wooden structures to other uses as his plans change.

Pole-type corn cribs are most economical if the building materials are durable and sturdy. Length of service will depend primarily on the decay and insect resistance of the poles that are used. Modern chemicals such as pentachlorophenol are being recommended to give longer pole life. Poles treated with this preservative have the advantages of being clean and easy to handle, especially in hot weather.

Plans for pole-type corn cribs are readily available from state agricultural colleges, county agents, lumber dealers and pole-building contractors.

Two Vice President Nominees Present Varied Appearances

By RELMAN MORIN
AP STAFF WRITER

If Vice Presiden Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. Estes Kefauver, were to meet in a public debate, you would see two apparently very different men.

Nixon is dark, carefully dressed, carefully groomed, an effortless speaker, obviously intelligent.

Kefauver is big, sandy-haired, often rumpled, slow of speech, with the expression of an absent-minded owl.

On a campaign, Nixon's essential qualities are alertness, fierce concentration, a driving determination to convince.

By contrast, Kefauver seems perpetually relaxed, easy-moving, a man taking little more than a neighborly interest in the proceedings.

"Very different types," you would say. "Looks like the country boy versus the city smoothie." But looks are deceiving.

Actually the rival vice-presidential candidates have a good many things in common.

They are both ambitious, aggressive men who plan carefully and work hard at the intricate business of getting elected.

Kefauver has a political background. His father, Robert Cooke Kefauver, 86, was four times mayor of Madisonville, Tenn., the senator's birthplace.

Nixon's father was a streetcar conductor and citrus grower in Yorba Linda, Calif., but the vice president, while he was studying law at Duke University, already was interested in a political career and getting advice about it.

To a considerable degree, each is a one-man operator, making his own decisions without a brain trust or intimate advisers.

Each has an attractive wife and family — Kefauver has three daughters, Nixon two.

"In her way," said a man who knows the Nixons well, "Pat Nixon is as smart as her husband."

Pretty, Scottish-born Nancy Kefauver speaks fluent French and used it effectively when her husband was campaigning in the New England mill towns.

They both kept posted on the smallest details of local politics. Chances are if either man came to your city tonight he could tell

One-Day Record Broken At Fair

COLUMBUS (AP)—Sam Cashman, Ohio State Fair manager, has reported every one-day attendance record in the history of the fair was shattered Sunday when 150,491 persons jammed the grounds.

He said the previous top attendance was in the sesquicentennial year of 1953 when 123,408 attended. That mark also was made on a Sunday.

Paid admissions for Sunday were 90,991 compared with the 1953 record of 74,480.

In addition to Sunday's paid figures, the overall attendance included: 50,000 children, 7,500 for Press Day, 4,000 armed forces members and 5,000 admitted for youth activities.

And, so far as anyone knows, it is done legitimately. In 1949, the value of Swiss-owned stock was $522,000,000; that is, American securities owned by Swiss nationals, usually Swiss banks representing anonymous accounts. By the end of 1954, this was increased to $1,353,000,000.

It must be much greater now because the past year has witnessed enormous activities in this direction. As for Canada, the Canadian investment in American securities in 1949 amounted, according to Lederer, to $480,000,000; in 1954, to $910,000,000. These figures appear very low in 1956 but give the general trend sufficiently to indicate what it is.

Surely, there can be no objection to the investment of foreign funds in American industry if we know who owns the funds. The principle objection is to anonymous ownership, particularly of defense plants which could be a peril to the country. The Swiss investment is totally anonymous and

Experts Advise Soil Testing Should Precede Lime In Fall

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Midwestern farmers can get the biggest return for their money by liming their soils this fall, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in citing statements by Corn Belt agronomists.

Lime added in the fall has a longer time to sweeten acid soils, the committee points out. That can mean better legume stands next spring and increased efficiency from the fertilizers a farmer uses to boost crop yields and cut costs of production.

"First step," says the committee, "is to have your soil tested to see how much lime is actually needed. This takes out the guesswork and the hazard of overliming. Too much lime on sandy loam or loam soil may cut down the availability of needed plant nutrients."

The committee stresses, also, that lime by itself cannot do the whole job of soil building.

"Liming is simply the first step," says the committee. "Lime has to be teamed up with nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizers, where needed, to give the best long range, crop-boosting results."

The committee lists these advantages of fall liming: 1—more time for the job; 2—a firmer footing for trucks and machinery; 3—faster deliveries; 4—a greater choice of fields to lime than in the spring.

Latin Americans Getting Much Money In U.S.

Businessmen Look Southward As Pace In Europe Slows

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Trade and investment money are flowing faster today along a two-way street between the United States and Latin America.

Many American businessmen look southward where the rate of industrial growth is on the upbeats while the pace in Western Europe slackens a bit.

Trade between this nation and those to the south is running at seven billion dollars a year, a Pan American-Grace Airways official says. He predicts that will double in 20 years.

The U.S. Department of Commerce reports Americans are investing 300 million dollars a year in Latin America — almost half of it in new manufacturing plants. One big reason: returns often are twice or more what they are here. Another: most Latin-American countries permit free ownership of foreign securities and free export of their national currency, while in many other places Americans must wait to get their earnings out in any form.

Much American investment has been in developing oil and mineral resources and the returns have been juicy. But there's been a postwar trend toward setting up subsidiaries of U.S. manufacturing companies, to get around any restrictions on dollar spending and to bring production close to expanding markets.

And retail trade with a Yankee flavor is increasing. Example: Sears Roebuck has put 33 million dollars in new stores throughout Latin America and is teaching the people to make some of the goods carried. Celanese, which has five plants in Mexico, uses local raw materials to win popularity.

This isn't all one way. The U.S. Commerce Department reports that Latin investments in this country, both private and governmental, now top three billion dollars. Last year Latin Americans bought 17 million dollars worth of U.S. corporate stocks to bring their holdings to 484 million.

Reporter Should Have Waited Before Visiting Kim Novak

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Kim Novak, a bona fide movie star now, has taken her first apartment since coming to Hollywood — and I, for one, wished she still lived at the Y. W. C. A.

As every dyed-in-the-wool fan knows, Kim is a famous alumna of the Studio Club. That's an inexpensive home-away-from-home for pretty young girls who want to make a name for themselves in Hollywood. It's also, as a department of the Y. W. C. A., a no-nonsense land.

But her studio apparently figured it too unglamorous an address for the Chicago blonde, fresh from successes in "Picnic" and "The Eddy Duchin Story" and soon to star in "The Jeanne Eagles Story" and "Pal Joey."

So when she returned from her triumphant tour of Europe, she leased a fancy Beverly Hills apartment.

As a discoverer of Kim, I was given the honor of being the first male reporter to see the new apartment. I wish I had been second.

The night before she had given a housewarming dinner. Judging from the number of dishes used, it looked like something out of Perle Mesta.

The dishes were all piled in the sink or stacked on the kitchen floor. All dirty, of course. "Wouldn't you know?" she moaned. "My first party and the maid turns up sick."

It was a sight to make any self-respecting maid sick. "You know I'm Bohemian we'll clean up these dishes quick," she added, whipping out two aprons. By the time she had tied the last bow on my apron, I got the whole

NASSER AGREES TO SUEZ DISCUSSIONS

Ammer Tells Phone Patrons Refunds May Prove Difficult

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer today renewed his suggestion that subscribers of the strike-bound Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company withhold payment of their monthly bills until the company's current labor dispute is ended.

A strike called against Ohio Consolidated by the Communications Workers of America is now in its 44th day. Little or no progress toward settlement has been reported during the past few weeks.

Ammer said he renewed his suggestion on withholding payment of bills because of a statement published over the signature of an executive of the utility. The statement said the bills for the present strike-affected service would be rendered for the full amount at this time.

Then, the company's arrangement went on, any adjustment needed to compensate for loss of service during the strike can be made after the dispute is ended.

AMMER, in a letter sent to R. N. Cole, vice-president of Ohio Consolidated, advised subscribers not to follow this procedure. There is no legal basis for refunds in such matters under Ohio law, he warned.

Only way to permit full payment at this time, according to Ammer, would be to have "the company, in a statement signed by the president, agree that payment of the full bill at this time would not in any way effect a refund later, either on a complaint to the Public Utilities Commission or other means."

Ammer also noted that the question of bills for strike-affected service has been brought directly to the attention of the PUCO through a complaint filed by William D. Del Vecchio, secretary of the board of trade of Tiltonsville. The action refers, Ammer said, "to the unfair charge for telephone rental during the period in which the strike has disrupted normal telephone service."

Meanwhile, talks between union and company officials presumably remained deadlocked on several provisions of a new contract. The company told of new vandalism against telephone equipment in the Portsmouth area, and union spokesmen again denied union members are responsible for the damage.

Referring to incidents of vandalism in this area, Bill Stewart, spokesman for the striking union, said: "We have made a thorough investigation and are positively certain that no union members are to blame for vandalism reported."

Eisenhower arrived here last Thursday evening a few hours after accepting nomination for a second term at the closing session of the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

Since then there have been developments regarding the President's health:

1. Hagerty has stated the doctors now feel Eisenhower's convalescence from major abdominal surgery which he underwent June 9 is at an end.

2. His weight, which fell off to about 157 pounds while he was hospitalized in June, climbed back to the presurgery level for the first time last week. As of four days ago he tipped the scales at 168½, a half pound more than he weighed when he entered the hospital.

3. He has resumed playing full rounds of golf, a favorite recreation which always is a good yardstick of how the President is feeling. He has played 18 holes at the Cypress Point course each day for the last four. The range was four to 16 holes on any one day before he came to picturesque Pebble Beach.

IN ADVANCE of Eisenhower's departure, Hagerty still was steadfastly refusing to discuss politics and the coming campaign. And he insisted the President had put pol-

Red China Sends Note On Attack

Peiping Negative On Chance Of Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China has informed the United States Red Chinese planes shot down an aircraft off the China coast last Thursday and that apparently there are no survivors.

Secretary of State Dulles reported today the Peiping regime contends, however, that the plane downed was a Chinese Nationalist plane.

A U. S. Navy Mercator patrol plane, with a 16 man crew, has been missing since Thursday (Tokyo time) after reporting it was under attack off Red China's coast.

U. S. searchers have found wreckage and the body of one crewman, with bullet wounds.

At a news conference, Dulles said that in answer to an American inquiry through the British embassy in Peiping, Red China has conceded only that Chinese air force fighters did shoot down a plane in that general area about the time mentioned.

DULLES REPORTED that the note, as he put it, was entirely negative regarding an American inquiry about the whereabouts of any survivors.

Dulles said he read a memorandum of the Chinese reply a few hours before the news conference. He said he did not recall precisely whether the Reds stuck to a story they previously broadcast by radio that a Chinese Nationalist plane was "damaged" and then disappeared toward the sea.

Dulles said he assumes that by now, since the body of a crewman has been discovered amid wreckage, everyone knows the American plane was shot down in any event. Apparently there were no survivors, he added.

Dulles did not indicate what the U. S. might next take. He said the Defense or State departments would make some sort of announcement as soon as all the facts are available.

There have been some demands that this country make a strong protest to Red China against the shooting, and perhaps take other action.

The department has taken the position that it first wanted to get all the facts on the case before taking any action.

Three Arrested In Los Angeles For Counterfeiting

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The $312,740 in counterfeit bills which Secret Service and FBI agents say Kenneth Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Bechtel made, didn't do them any good.

All three are in jail, charged with counterfeiting.

Guy Spaman, in charge of the Secret Service in Los Angeles, said less than 30 spurious $10 bills were circulated and the rest were recovered from one gallon glass jars hidden in nearby Brea and Mt. Baldy Canyons last Aug. 19.

Moore, 29, of Compton, Calif., was arrested by FBI agents here, and Bechtel, 40, and his wife, Lena May, 26, were taken into custody in Chicago Monday.

FBI agents in Chicago said Bechtel was implicated in a $2,800 armed robbery in Phoenix, Ariz., and has been on the wanted list since Aug. 31, 1953.

THIS STRANGE scene is James Merkouris, 42, bound and gagged in superior Judge Clement D. Nye's court in Los Angeles, and Merkouris attorney, P. Basil Lambros. Merkouris is the defendant in a sanity trial, and the judge ordered him bound and gagged to halt his outbursts of shouting and profanity. Also, he slugged the prosecutor. Construction of a soundproof booth with interior hearing devices was being considered.

World News In Brief

Truce Seen Ended By Cypriot Bomb

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The end of an 11-day truce proclaimed by the Greek Cypriot underground was punctuated today by a bombing at the east coast town of Larnaca.

Authorities said the bomb damaged a house occupied by a Greek family but there were no casualties. The bombing was blamed on EOKA, the extremist underground that called the truce.

Meanwhile, the British placed Dr. Themistocles Dervis, Greek mayor of Nicosia under house arrest and searched his home and office.

They said they were investigating the mayor "as a result of information received" but did not elaborate. The mayor is an outspoken advocate of union with Greece.

Authorities also announced six convicted EOKA members were taken from Nicosia's central prison and flown to Britain to serve out the rest of their sentences. They said the six had terrorized both their wardens and other prisoners. One convicted EOKA under life sentence escaped from the prison Monday night.

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP)—Tsugio Yue's recently organized marine salvage company removed 3,000 worth of U. S. Navy cable from the bottom of Tokyo Bay without getting Navy consent.

Yue, 49, and his six associates in the now defunct Fuji Salvage Co., were jailed today on charges of grand larceny.

LONDON (AP)—The British Brewers Assn. reported today that Britons drank 902 million gallons of beer in 1955. That's enough to float 89 battleships the size of the royal navy's 44,500-ton Vanguard.

The United States, which has three times Britain's population, led the world with a consumption of 2,167,000,000 gallons. World consumption was placed at 6,520,000,000 gallons.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Typhoon Charlotte was centered about 500 miles southeast of Formosa today and headed in the general direction of this Chinese Nationalist island. Winds of 90 miles an hour were reported near the center of the typhoon.

GENOA (AP)—The 750-ton corvette Flora, United States financed and Italian-built, was delivered to Denmark today. She is the third vessel given Denmark in a ship-building program for North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations.

Eight corvettes are being built in Italian shipyards for Italy, Denmark and the Netherlands. The United States is paying about 2½ million dollars each.

Bomber Hits Two Houses; Four Die

SANFORD, Fla. (AP)—Four persons including a 3-year-old child died when a two-engine Navy attack bomber plowed into two houses three blocks from a landing field Monday.

Sue Lowe, the child, was burned to death on the porch of the wrecked home where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lowe. The Lowes and their son, David, 4, were hospitalized with severe burns.

The three-man crew of the bomber also died in the crash and fire that followed.

Fireworks Blast Burns Are Fatal

AKRON (AP)—Severely burned in an explosion and fire at the American Fireworks Co. north of Hudson, Dominic Colivito, 74, died early today in St. Thomas Hospital.

Colivito had been working with powder in the manufacture of a display device, in a building about 10 by 14 feet.

An explosion wrecked the building, and in the fire which followed the man was burned over about three-fourths of his body.

Adlai Appeals For Precinct Support

Turns Campaign Sights Northwest After New Mexico Conference

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, hitting hard at the importance of organizing at the precinct level, headed today for the northwest on the second leg of a whirlwind precampaign tour.

The next stop for the Democratic presidential nominee and his running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, was Portland, Ore. Then, after a motor trip to Bonneville Dam, they are to confer with party leaders from Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and Utah.

By nightfall they are to be on the way again, taking off in their chartered plane for Sioux City, Iowa.

The first of a series of powwows with Democratic leaders was held here Monday, and afterward Stevenson pronounced it "even more satisfactory than I thought was possible."

"The enthusiasm and the spirit of the party in the southwest has exhilarated me," he told newsmen.

THE CONFERENCE, largely given over to campaign tactics at the unglamorous working level, brought together representatives of these seven states—New Mexico, Colorado, Arkansas, Wyoming, Texas, Oklahoma and Arizona.

Most of these states, with 57 electoral votes, are normally Democratic, but in 1952 President Eisenhower carried all of them except Arkansas.

Stevenson bluntly told the conferees that the Democrats have "a man-sized job" on their hands to win in the November election and that party workers were going to have to roll up their sleeves and labor in the precincts.

"This election is going to be won or lost depending on what is done in the precincts," he said. "And when I say won or lost, I mean won."

The present series of regional meetings is designed to lay the groundwork at the grass roots for the speech-making campaign that Stevenson and Kefauver will launch next month.

Stevenson said that while he does not intend to attack Eisenhower personally, he is going to make an issue of the way in which the President has conducted his office and what he called the present "failure of leadership."

SLIGHTLY OVER 90 political leaders were on hand from the seven states in the area for the Santa Fe conference.

Stevenson said they discussed such issues as water, agriculture, Indian affairs, "hard money," schools, health and taxation. They also spent a lot of time

Lausche Assails Bender's Use Of Franking Rights

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has termed free use of the mails by his opponent in the senatorial election campaign a "trespass upon the rights of taxpayers."

The Democratic governor referred to a weekly information letter mailed by Republican U.S. Sen. George H. Bender under his franking privilege.

Lausche is seeking to unseat Bender in the Nov. 6 election. The governor told newsmen:

"Within the last three months, I have had at least 75 letters from citizens to whom Sen. Bender has sent his weekly bulletin asking me how under the franking privilege political propaganda can be legally and morally distributed."

"I answered all of them telling them that in my judgment there definitely is a trespass upon the rights of the taxpayers when congressmen free of charge use the federal postal service to promote their personal whims and objectives."

"The problem takes on added sharpness in face of the fact that Congress is increasing the rates on some classes of mail service while some of its members are abusing the franking privilege."

Going To School

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration said today it expects more than 750,000 veterans to attend college and other training establishments this fall under the Korean GI bill.

Sends Letter Of Acceptance To Committee Head

Egypt's President Fails To Specify Any Place, Date

LONDON (AP)—Egypt agreed today to meet with a committee charged with presenting a proposal for international control of the Suez Canal but made no commitment to accept the plan.

President Nasser made known his willingness to see the five-nation committee in a terse letter to its chairman, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia. He mentioned neither time nor place for the meeting.

The letter did not bear out an earlier report from Egyptian officials that Nasser had specified Cairo as the site for the meeting.

On the strength of this report, a spokesman for the committee had indicated the members were ready to fly to Cairo almost immediately.

On getting Nasser's reply, Menzies went to 10 Downing St., residence of Prime Minister Eden where the cabinet was in session. The cabinet was informed of Nasser's reply and the meeting broke up soon after.

THE COMMITTEE was named by 18 of the 22 nations attending the recent Suez conference in London.

It was assigned the task of presenting the majority proposals to Nasser for an international board to run the canal. The plan would make Egypt a member of the board and link the agency to the United Nations.

Nasser has said that Egypt will keep the canal open to all shipping. Reports from Cairo said he would offer treaty guarantees to back up his promise.

In the background remained the key question of what the West would do next if Nasser, after meeting with the committee, still refused to yield the waterway to international control.

Britain and France are continuing to reinforce their military forces in the Eastern Mediterranean. They considered likely that a deadlock over the canal would bring economic rather than military moves against Egypt.

THE ALREADY tense situation between Britain and Egypt was whetted by the arrest in Cairo of two British subjects on charges of espionage. At least one Egyptian also was arrested and accused of being a member of an alleged spy ring.

The Britons are James Swinburn, 51, business manager of the British-owned Arab News Agency, and Charles Pittuck, an official of the Marconi radio-telegraph Co. of Egypt.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said he was awaiting a full report before deciding whether to file a formal protest. But a British spokesman in Cairo flatly denied the embassy

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"BUG ABOUT TO BE TOLLED OFF"

The Bell is an instrument that's been around for quite a while and has been used since ancient times to provide both music and alarms. Some of the more famous Bells are the Liberty Bell, Big Ben and Alexander Graham. But there are a lot of bells that helped make history that no one ever thinks about. For instance, the bell on the alarm clock that woke up Paul Revere. Or the first Good Humor Bell or the one that was Mrs. O'Leary's cow, or the one on Zsa Zsa Gabor's telephone. But the most amazing bell I ever saw is the one my landlady, Mrs. Goonsgarten, uses to let us boarders know when dinner is ready. It's made out of sponge rubber.

Juveniles Held In Fake Shooting

AKRON (AP)—Six teen-agers who staged a fake shooting and threw a "body" off the North Main Street viaduct late Monday were rounded up by detectives and held in the juvenile detention home.

The boys were quoted as saying, "We didn't realize how serious it might have been" and "we just wanted to have some fun."

A motorist witnessed the incident, which involved the use of cap guns. Then a dummy, splashed with red paint and bound with a chain, was tossed over the viaduct railing, landing 180 feet below on the pavement.

There was in any way involved with the alleged spy ring. Hundreds of wives and children of Britons working in Egypt have been evacuated since the seizure of the canal, and both Britain and France have advised all their people there to leave unless they have compelling reasons for staying. One of three Western correspondents expelled from Egypt Sunday, William Stevenson of the Toronto, Ont., Star, published the dispatch his paper said had caused his ouster. In it he reported THAT German Nazis are "everywhere and everything in Egypt today."

Patrol Adds More Unmarked Autos

WARREN P.—The state highway patrol is doubling the number of "unmarked" patrol cars it has in service on highways throughout the state. Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent, has announced. He did not give specific figures. He said the special cars have been especially effective in breaking up hot rod and drag races since they were put into service last June. Unlike the regular patrol cars, the special cars have no roof sign light and are minus the foot high body lettering. To comply with a state law requiring the marking of police cars, the special cars are marked only with the words "State Highway Patrol" in two inch letters.

Sen. Smathers Not Bothered By Lausche Talk

But Some Leaders In Both Parties Indicate Irritation

By JAMES B. SIBBISON

WASHINGTON (AP)—GOP party professionals just can't conceal their irritation at the "political independence" of Ohio Gov. Frank J. Lausche. Some Democrats get riled at it, too.

"Political chameleon" and "part-time Democrat" are just two of the things Lausche's rival in the fall campaign, Sen. George H. Bender, calls him.

And Democratic Chairman Paul M. Butler has severely criticized Lausche for not being what he considers a real Democrat.

This sort of talk doesn't impress George Smathers at all. A Democratic senator from Florida, Smathers says he earnestly hopes Lausche will join him and his fellow senators next year. Moreover, he thinks he will.

Now it's Smathers' job, as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, to help senatorial candidates of his party get elected this fall.

This assistance, he says, certainly will go to Lausche, if he wants it, in spite of the governor's assertion that he is in doubt whether he would vote with the GOP or the Democrats in organizing the Senate.

"So far as I'm concerned," said the tall, handsome Smathers, "I don't have any worry about how he'll vote."

"He's an independent Democrat, but a Democrat, nonetheless. I believe when he gets here he'll vote Democratic."

As for Butler's criticism of Lausche, Smathers says he isn't swayed at all by that.

"Butler is a splendid man," said Smathers, "and a fine national chairman. But he doesn't know the problems of having to appeal to a lot of different people in a campaign. For my own part, I'm not going to pass judgement on Lausche."

It's Smathers' belief—like that of a lot of southerners in congress—that a senator has the right to disagree frequently with the party leadership.

"Otherwise," he says, "the national chairman might as well get together on legislation and decide issues like a poker game, with each one showing so many votes."

Smathers also has a personal reason for favoring Lausche. As he recalls it, Lausche's wife, Jane, sat on the platform at Del Ray Beach in Florida in 1950 when Smathers was campaigning against Claude Pepper. The Lausches vacationed at Del Ray.

"I saw him twice on social occasions at the Democratic convention, too," said Smathers.

"I asked him if he needed any help. But he said he didn't. He said he believes things are coming along very satisfactorily."

Lausche, it would appear, still is taking the "independent" approach.

State Fair In Its Fifth Day; Attendance Records Fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Attendance at the 1956 Ohio State Fair continued to smash records as the big show went into its fifth day today dedicated to farm organization.

Principal activities were to be at the Youth Center where Camp Fire Girl demonstrations, a 4-H style revue and FFA demonstrations were scheduled.

An estimated 60,000 visitors Monday kept the fair ahead of last year's record 44,000 for the corresponding day. Thus far, fair attendance has eclipsed previous record totals for each day. Official attendance for the first three days was 359,194, or 129,000 more than the attendance for the corresponding period in 1955.

In livestock judging, grand champions were picked in two swine breeds, Tamworth and Berkshire. Top Tamworth boar was shown by Chester Wiley of Columbiana City, Ind. Wiley also showed the grand champion Tamworth sow.

Highway Rerouting In Northwest Ohio To Be Discussed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state highway department reported today that highway rerouting in a three-county northwestern Ohio area will be discussed Wednesday in the Lucas County Courthouse in Toledo.

The department said five highways in Lucas, Wood and Hancock counties will be affected by changes designed to simplify highway numbering and relieve unnecessary sign maintenance expenses.

The highways are U.S. 24A, U.S. 68, Ohio 120, Ohio 51 and Ohio 199. Segments of all but Ohio 51 would be abandoned on roads which carry more than one route designation. Portions would be left to county and city roads systems.

Ohio 51 would be extended from its intersection with Ohio 199 to a junction with Ohio 120.

He's Victim Of Too Much Sleep

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Oh, sleep may be a gentle thing, beloved from pole to pole, but not by James Carroll. Not after Monday. Carroll, 42, fell asleep in the booth of a Norfolk tavern. When he awoke a little while later, he found that a light-fingered patron had removed $19 from his pockets. Worse yet, Carroll always keeps a little reserve cash hidden in his shoes, and the thief had taken the shoes, too—right off his feet.

Wreckage In Auto Crash Turned Into Flaming Bier

TOOEL, Utah (AP)—Three men died in the crash of their car with a gasoline tank truck Monday night at a highway junction nine miles north of here.

Officers said an unknown passing motorist tossed a lighted match onto spilled gasoline before two of the bodies could be extricated. The resulting blaze cremated the bodies and took 2½ hours to bring under control.

It was several hours before the Utah Highway Patrol could issue a tentative identification of the dead. The three, all Salt Lake City men, were listed as Lee Loy Park, owner of the car, Tommy Lau and Lau Chin, ages unknown.

Highway Patrolman Howard Cooper said one body had been removed from the car and officers were waiting for acetylene torch equipment to free the other dead when the wreckage was set ablaze. He said all three were killed in the crash.

Glen Townsend, 28, Salt Lake City, driver of the truck, was not seriously hurt.

Aircraft Survives Engine Failure

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—An Air Force plane with 19 men aboard lost the use of two of its four engines while 450 miles at sea Monday night, but the damage was repaired in flight.

The engines of the giant Constellation radar plane apparently quit because of a short circuit, a failing, Air Force men said, which was repaired from within the plane.

The Air Force plane, which was on a routine patrol, landed safely.

PROTECTED CAR DEALERS
AUTOMOBILE dealers have complained for years that the factories loaded them with cars which they were forced to move at cut-rate prices, thus denying them fair profits. After a long lobbying effort, the dealers succeeded in getting the recent session of Congress to enact a law.
The new law provides that if a manufacturer "intimidates" a dealer or employs methods that impair the value of a dealer's franchise, the dealer may seek redress in court. A franchise may not be cancelled by a manufacturer without giving the dealer a chance to fight back.
President Eisenhower signed this bill with doubts about its constitutionality. It is special interest legislation. A similar Colorado state law was ruled unconstitutional in a federal court.
However the law works out, it does not reach the heart of the trouble, which is rising competition. Not only are more than 5 million new automobiles offered for sale annually, but an approximately equal number of traded-in used cars must be resold. How to get both new and used cars off his hands is the dealer's problem. Competition will trim his profits regardless of factory attitudes.
Automobile dealers will welcome the opportunity to seek redress when manufacturers order them to do this and so, or else. But whether federal courts, which have upheld fair trade laws under which manufacturers dictate prices to dealers, can also uphold this law remains to be seen.

INDIVIDUALISM'S PENALTIES
THERE WAS something to tickle the individualistic fancy about southern Oregon's Stumbo clan stumping the Oregon Highway Commission about a contested strip of highway.
Robert G. Stumbo, spokesman for the clan of brothers and cousins, made the commission admit that the Stumbos actually own 16 feet of busy U. S. Highway 99 near Wolf Creek, Ore. Furthermore, the clan announced it just might operate a toll road, and in fact held up traffic for an hour by stretching a rope across their property and putting up a big "private property" sign.
All of this smacks of America's early days of rugged individualism and it isn't difficult to enjoy the dismay of bureaucrats in Oregon's officialdom at being outwitted by the Stumbos.
The only catch is that it wouldn't have been funny to have been one of the dozens of motorists held up by the Stumbo claim. Nor would the idea of a toll road for 16 feet be popular, even if it were conceivable that the state would not condemn the stretch of ground involved. The Stumbo story illustrates that in this increasingly crowded country one man's individualism may be many other persons' annoyance.
It is a pity but that seems to be the way of civilization.
One statesman wants a constitutional amendment prohibiting deficits. What on earth would candidates promise the voters then?

Four Fists Now Needed

NEW YORK (AP)—A new figure of heroic stature looms on the American political horizon—the two-fisted vice president.
In the past it hasn't made much difference whether the President's harness mate had two heads or ten thumbs, as he didn't count much anyway. His main problem was to make the appropriate noises while presiding over the U. S. Senate.
Only one man in history has made a really memorable utterance while serving as stall mouse for the occupant of the White House. He was Thomas Riley Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson. Marshall escaped oblivion as the result of his daring remark, "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."
But the situation has now changed. The voters seem sold on the idea that what this country needs is not a vice president who merely yawns for a good five-cent cigar, but one who will get in there with bare knuckles and fight for it.
Perhaps the biggest result of the 1956 national political conventions is that both Republicans and Democrats now agree on this—running the executive branch of the federal government has become a four-fisted job.
The President's two fists are no longer enough. His veep must have fists, too.
Considering the proven political pugnacity of the two present rival candidates for vice president—Estes Kefauver and Dick Nixon—the nation may even wind up with a veep who gives the appearance of having triple fists.
Commenting on the new trend, a television pundit pontificated: "There will be no throttle bottoms." He was referring to Alexander Throtlebottom, the amiable, bumbling, vice presidential nonentity in the Broadway Musical, "Of Thee I Sing."

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's
I was reading a circular of an American-Canadian investment fund which are proliferating like rabbits, when I came across this paragraph relating to the primary objective for the fund:
"To operate in such a way that the shareholders will incur only minimum taxes and the Fund will incur no United States tax liability and only relatively small tax liability to Canada and other countries."
It has been suggested to me that there is nothing wrong in thinking up a gimmick to save money on taxes. Of course, there is nothing morally or legally wrong with that, except that when the rest of us have to carry a heavy load because we earn wages, we are not excited about those who are able to shift the load from themselves to us.
If a tax is to be socially right, it should be equally collected. If those who possess reservoirs of capital can shift their funds to Canada or Liberia or Panama or wherever and thus avoid paying an equal tax with other citizens, it can only mean that the others have to pay more.
I do not mention the name of this particular fund, first, because I am not advertising it for prospective investors and secondly because there are many such funds and they are all pretty much alike. I have its brochure before me and this paragraph is particularly interesting:
"The Fund intends so to conduct its affairs that it will incur no tax liability to the United States, since it does not intend (1) to engage in trade or business in the United States within the meaning of the United States Internal Revenue Code, (2) to have a permanent establishment in the United States within the meaning of the tax treaty between the United States and Canada or (3) to have any income arising from sources within the United States which would be subject to United States taxes."
The Government of the United States has very little information on the movement of money in and out of the country. A statement prepared by M. Joseph Meehan, Director, Office of Business Economics of the U. S. Department of Commerce, read before the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security, contained these paragraphs which are a realistic appraisal of the situation:
"Our present sources of information on the acquisition and sale by foreigners of controlling interests in United States companies are incomplete. Withholding-tax records apply only to enterprises paying dividends to foreign residents.
"When purchases or sales are deliberately concealed, we would have no means to discover them. Moreover, even when we know that an enterprise is wholly or partially controlled by foreign interests our questionnaires are not always answered."
Walter Lederer, Chief of the Balance of Payments Division of the Department of Commerce, estimated that the minimum foreign investment in American industry is $11,000,000,000. Chairman Armstrong of the SEC had put the figure at $26,000,000,000. These figures are not divergent; they represent the inclusion of different entities, but no matter what data one studies, the fact emerges that Canada and Switzerland are excellent tax sanctuaries for American money which can then come back into this country in the form of Canadian, Swiss or other national investments and avoid the payment of taxes.

Challenge For Dr. Mays

A new novel by ELIZABETH SEIFERT.
© 1955, by Elizabeth Seifert. Reprinted by permission of the publisher, Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.
CHAPTER 32
AS STELLA and Newell McCrillis came through the door, Newell accepted Chad's dark-rimmed glasses, put them on, and nodded cheerfully to Dr. Wilkins-Smith, who looked more and more like an exceedingly sick man.
"Why, hello, Doctor!" Stella said pleasantly. "I didn't know you were here."
She smiled with equal friendliness upon John Blandin, who gave her his chair and joined Newell on the wide window sill.
"This is a discussion, Mrs. McCrillis," Chad told her, "not a trial, or anything like that. But you know of course that a law suit has been brought against this clinic and the doctors connected with it. You know that your examination here, and your experience at the County Hospital, occasioned that charge of malpractice. Now, of course, I can testify—present to this group—an account of what the clinic did for you here. Its microscopic tissue tests, and its diagnosis. We send our patients to a hospital or to a doctor with a brief account of our findings, and sometimes with suggestions. We gave you such a report—and you took yours to the County Hospital."
"Did you tell her to?" asked the big sandy-haired lawyer on Wilkins-Smith's right side.
Chad smiled at him. Then he turned back to Stella. "Now, Mrs. McCrillis," he said gently, "will you please tell the gentlemen what happened at the hospital, whom you saw, what was done, and so forth?"
"Dr. Mays will have told you what to say," drawled the same lawyer.
Stella looked at him.
"We were asked to come to the clinic this afternoon," she said quietly, and firmly, "because of this meeting. One told me what to say. I got the general impression that I might be asked to undergo further tests and examinations—by outside doctors, you know?" Her fingertips rested upon the white bandage which showed above the collar of her green dress.
The big lawyer subsided.
Stella's eyes fell for a minute upon the man in the Palm Beach suit. He was writing busily upon a pad of white paper. She glanced around at Newell, at Chad, then lifted her head and began to speak.
"I've had this skin trouble for some time," she said thoughtfully. "After my examination here at the clinic I was hopeful. You know, these days, cancer is a very real dread. I went to the County Hospital expecting to get the treatment which the doctor here had advised."
"What was that doctor's name?" asked Dr. Gaskins.
"It was Dr. Blandin," she said, turning to smile at John, who nodded.
"You see," she explained ingenuously to the Clinic Board, "a patient comes in here, and answers a lot of questions. And then you get some tests. In my case, they took a—well a slice from this neck-business. And finally a doctor talked to me. Dr. Blandin called it 'evaluating the findings.' He said he thought my neck-thing was serious but would respond to treatment. I asked him where to get that treatment, and he said to take my report to almost any accredited hospital. If I had no preference, he said, the clinic would give me a list of several but would not recommend one."
"Well," she resumed, "I wasn't frightened or anything like that, the way it said in the law suit. In fact I was relieved. But I knew I must take care of the condition, and since I'd already chosen the County Hospital to receive my report—we had no family doctor, and my husband said I might as well make use of the County institution—I went there for the treatment. First I saw a young doctor, Dr. Bequette; he was an intern. He looked at my neck, had a nurse wash it—and then he asked me to wait and see Dr. Wilkins-Smith. I knew Dr. Wilkins-Smith was a gynecologist, and I asked why. He told me he was also Superintendent at the hospital and would want to see a case like mine. He took my clinic card and went off. I never saw him again."
"Well, I waited an hour, maybe. Then a nurse came and took me down the hall to Dr. Wilkins-Smith's office. He was very nice to me—so nice that I got scared, and my neck began to hurt. That was funny, because it never had hurt before, especially. I guess his solemn manner made me nervous—and afraid. He examined my neck, then he sat down, and after ne had talked to me for a bit, he told me to brace myself, that he would have to tell me, honestly, that I had cancer.

"I just sat there for a minute. Of course the word itself was a shock. But mostly I wondered how he knew. He'd looked at my neck, but that was all. And you'd think he would make some tests, wouldn't you? What with the clinic's recommendation—and if he really did feel it was a serious case?"
"Yes, Stella," said Chad softly, "we'd think he would be more thorough."
"Well, anyway," she continued, "he thought the word cancer was scaring me, and he quickly said I was not to worry, he could cure it. By that time, my wits were working, and I reminded him that the Clinic had said my condition was not serious but had recommended tests. He looked sort of mad, and leaned toward me." She paused in troubled thought.
"And then," she resumed slowly, "he said that the Clinic's opinion was worthless, that the whole thing amounted to a fraud. He said it sort of sadly, adding that he'd had twenty years of experience with cases like mine. He said he'd found that the clinic was making a lot of mistakes, and he felt that something should be done about it, to protect the public. Then he went on to ask me if I would be willing to cooperate with him in a project which he had in mind."
She glanced briefly toward Dr. Wilkins-Smith, and color rose in her cheeks. She put one hand to her throat.
"He sounded very noble," she said faintly. "And he asked me if I would be willing to cooperate in a suit he planned to bring against the clinic—because, you know, of what he called its superficial examinations and its attempt to diagnose such things as TB and cancer and heart trouble. He called the whole thing a vicious movement trafficking with the health of our community. He said that he needed a clear-cut example of mistaken diagnosis, and mine seemed tailor-made. He explained that he meant to finance the suit personally, and he hoped that I also had the interest of my neighbors enough at heart to cooperate. He said he would give my case extra-special care. In time..."

Even Good Drivers Must Have Eyes Checked Often
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
WHO are the better drivers, men or women?
The Better Vision Institute has come up with some evidence which I think is important in this controversy.
Estimating Differences
A recent study, according to the Institute, indicates that men can estimate distances more accurately than women can. It also shows that men have a slight edge in judgment of speed.
For the tests, 54 men and an equal number of women were measured for visual acuity, distance judgment and speed estimation. Three different instruments were used.
Ages of the subjects ranged from 18 to 61 years. Mean age of the men was 29.56 and of the women, 30.78.
Distance Judgment
Those with good far-point visual acuity were found to be considerably better than the others in distance judgment and a little better in estimating speed.
Strangely enough, driving experience had no substantial relationship to either of these skills.
Apparently unless the average driver has special training he improves very little in distance judgment and speed estimation once he learns how to drive.
Proficiency in estimating distance and speed, of course, helps any driver avoid accidents.
If the men are better at these than women are, well, draw your own conclusion.
One thing I will say, though, is that all drivers should have regular eye examinations at frequent intervals. Anyone with faulty vision should never take a chance where his safety may depend on judging distance and speed.
And remember, 20/20 vision doesn't necessarily mean that your eyesight is perfect.
QUESTION AND ANSWER
H. T. I have been losing weight and coughing up blood. Could these be tuberculosis symptoms?
Answer: The first symptoms of tuberculosis are fatigue and loss of weight. There is a loss of appetite which is followed by coughing, expectoration, more loss of weight, fever and night sweats.

A samll boy invaded a big store's lingerie section and shyly presented his problem to a lady clerk. "I want to buy mom a surprise present of a slip," he said, "but I forgot what size she wears." The clerk said, "It would help to know if your mom is tall or short, fat or skinny."

Daily Daintiness Important Start In Hot Weather

Daintiness is something that is on the daily agenda of every wise woman, no matter the season. At this summertime of the year, it is more important than ever.

In hot weather, a once-a-day shower may not be sufficient. It is a cool idea to shower morning and night. Certainly, it will get your day off to a refreshing start and wind it up in the same way.

When it comes to drying off, may we suggest you take a note from the French?

In some Paris hotels, bath towels are not provided, and for a very good reason. Instead, each guest is supplied with a bathrobe that really lives up to the name. It is literally that. Made of terry, it is designed to slip into as soon as you step from your bath. It dries you off without any of the fuss and bother.

Keep fragrant accessories handy, so you can use them as soon as you dry. Pat on-scented talcum generously. Slather on an after-bath friction or cologne.

The fragrance, plus the cooling effect of the shower, will make you feel like a new woman.

Never forget to use deodorant, a point that simply can not be overstressed.

When it comes to dress shields, and they are essential, too, try this trick: pin a really absorbent facial tissue into the armhole of your dress, attaching pins to seams so they will not show. If you like, you can fold the tissue in half.

What is the idea? It is this: using tissues instead of shields will save you washing and sewing-in time. And unless you perspire overly, the tissue will serve the purpose nicely.

During the summer months, because of the trend toward carefree easy meals, certain foods find general use. Among those foods bought by most homemakers are cold cuts and cheese, because they offer such variety and are convenient to use. To stand at the cases in the supermarket and look at the number of varieties of each of these foods is a revelation. Displays are enticing and usually we buy more than we need.

During hot weather, when most home refrigerators are stocked with both cheese and cold cuts, care must be given in storing these foods to keep optimum quality. Special care must be given the cold meats especially, as they are usually sliced and lose quality quickly if not properly wrapped and stored.

For a wrap, the transparent plastic household film is ideal. It molds itself around the cheese or meat, keeping air out and moist goodness in. For the opened packages of sliced meat, make certain that the slices are placed one on top of another compactly before wrapping with saran. Sliced cheese, too, should be handled the same way.

Other advantages of using this transparent plastic film for wrapping such foods as meat and cheese are: the odor of strong cheese and garlic in some meats will not be absorbed by other foods in the refrigerator; and due to the "see-through" quality of the wrap, there will be no difficulty in finding the type of meat or cheese that you want because each can be readily identified through the film.

WASHINGTON (AP)—An era ended and another began in 1932. Now, 24 years later, the two presidential candidates of 1956, President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson, see a brand new era ahead.

But there is a difference between the way the Democrats and Republicans approached the new era in 1932 and the way Eisenhower and Stevenson look forward to the years immediately ahead.

In 1932 the Republicans drowning in the great depression, lacked fresh ideas. That same year the Democratic platform was short and direct. It promised action of a new kind on many fronts.

The Democrats won. They changed the course of American life and established definitely the principle of government responsibility for the general welfare.

President Herbert Hoover, running for re-election against Franklin D. Roosevelt, said: "This campaign is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government."

"Our opponents . . . are proposing changes and so-called new deals which would destroy the very foundations of our American system . . ."

Roosevelt saw it otherwise. Accepting the Democratic nomination, he said: "I pledge you, I pledge myself to a new deal for the American people." And later: "The country needs, and unless I mistake its temper, the country demands, bold, persistent experimentation."

There followed under Roosevelt the long list of New Deal programs and adjustments in American living: Social Security, the Wagner Act, the 40-hour week, controls over business, the reciprocal trade law.

Much that seemed radical in these programs at the time — or was called radical — actually had roots in federal or state programs enacted into law in related fields years before. And the New Deal social programs, instead of being new, were only bringing the United States abreast of the advanced European countries.

For years afterward Republicans fought, in whole or piecemeal, the New Deal and later the "Fair Deal" which was an extension of it. In time they recognized — but not too clearly until Eisenhower became president — that the New and Fair Deals were simply bringing the United States up to date and laying the basic foundations for the future.

Under Eisenhower the Republicans adopted basic programs of both the New and Fair Deals and even extended them.

Thus both parties are abreast of each other and in that sense an era has ended, for the New Deal and Fair Deal programs have become a broad foundation for the future.

Neither party is offering now — as Roosevelt did in 1932 — broad new fields of experimentation. They are accepting what has been done in the past and proposing to extend it. Neither party's program this year offers anything which essentially is different from the other's.

So at midcentury both parties, standing on the broad base already laid, are pulling in the same direction.

Midwestern farmers traditionally store huge amounts of corn for feed, for government loans and for possible higher prices.

This seasonal need for more corn cribs creates a problem for Corn Belt farmers who must build and harvest in the same busy season. Pole-type corn cribs are filling the requirements on many farms because of their speed of erection as well as low cost. They also fit well into modern farm mechanical handling operations.

Because they are built on a framework of poles, pole-type corn cribs cost less than conventional buildings. They can be permanent and have superior wind resistance, but the farmer can also easily convert the wooden structures to other uses as his plans change.

Pole-type corn cribs are most economical if the building materials are durable and sturdy. Length of service will depend primarily on the decay and insect resistance of the poles that are used. Modern chemicals such as pentachlorophenol are being recommended to give longer pole life. Poles treated with this preservative have the advantages of being clean and easy to handle, especially in hot weather.

Plans for pole-type corn cribs are readily available from state agricultural colleges, county agents, lumber dealers and pole-building contractors.

Two Vice President Nominees Present Varied Appearances

By RELMAN MORIN
AP STAFF WRITER

If Vice President Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. Estes Kefauver, were to meet in a public debate, you would see two apparently very different men.

Nixon is dark, carefully dressed, carefully groomed, an effortless speaker, obviously intelligent.

Kefauver is big, sandy-haired, often rumpled, slow of speech, with the expression of an absent-minded owl.

On a campaign, Nixon's essential qualities are alertness, fierce concentration, a driving determination to convince.

By contrast, Kefauver seems perpetually relaxed, easy-moving, a man taking little more than a neighborly interest in the proceedings.

"Very different types," you would say. "Looks like the country boy versus the city smoothie."

But looks are deceiving. Actually the rival vice-presidential candidates have a good many things in common.

They are both ambitious, aggressive men who plan carefully and work hard at the intricate business of getting elected.

Kefauver has a political background. His father, Robert Cooke Kefauver, 86, was four times mayor of Madisonville, Tenn., the senator's birthplace.

Nixon's father was a streetcar conductor and citrus grower in Yorba Linda, Calif., but the vice president, while he was studying law at Duke University, already was interested in a political career and getting advice about it.

To a considerable degree, each is a one-man operator, making his own decisions without a brain trust or intimate advisors.

Each has an attractive wife and family — Kefauver has three daughters, Nixon two.

"In her way," said a man who knows the Nixons well, "Pat Nixon is as smart as her husband."

Pretty, Scottish-born Nancy Kefauver speaks fluent French and used it effectively when her husband was campaigning in the New England mill towns.

They both kept posted on the smallest details of local politics. Chances are if either man came to your city tonight he could tell you who is what in local politics and why.

Each has the priceless ability to "think on his feet," that is, to turn the unexpected to his advantage.

Kefauver, 53, is 10 years older than Nixon. He came to Congress in 1939. Nixon was elected in 1946. Both soon went after seats in the Senate and won.

Kefauver has a dry, natural humor. Nixon's little sallies, when he tries them, are planned.

But perhaps the greatest difference between the two men is this: Nixon is shrewd, smooth, bold and effective, and he shows it.

Kefauver is, too — but he doesn't show it.

Boy's Jewel Gift Brings Trouble

LYNNFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Steve Grady gave his girl some jewelry — and that's where trouble began. Steve Grady is only 6 years old. His girl friend, identified only as Mary, is 4.

Steve's brother, Paul, 5, informed his mother Monday "Stevie gave Mary a lot of jewelry."

The mother checked her jewel box and found two rings, two bracelets and a necklace, which she valued at $75, were missing.

She told her husband, Police Sgt. Norman Grady, and he initiated a search.

Steve admitted he gave his girl friend the jewelry. Mary said she buried most of it, but can't remember where.

One-Day Record Broken At Fair

COLUMBUS (AP)—Sam Cashman, Ohio State Fair manager, has reported every one-day attendance record in the history of the fair was shattered Sunday when 150,491 persons jammed the grounds.

He said the previous top attendance was in the sesquicentennial year of 1953 when 123,408 attended. That mark also was made on a Sunday.

Paid admissions for Sunday were 90,991 compared with the 1953 record of 74,480.

In addition to Sunday's paid figures, the overall attendance included: 50,000 children, 7,500 for Press Day, 4,000 armed forces members and 5,000 admitted for youth activities.

And, so far as anyone knows, it is done legitimately. In 1949, the value of Swiss-owned stock was $522,000,000; that is, American securities owned by Swiss nationals, usually Swiss banks representing anonymous accounts. By the end of 1954, this was increased to $1,353,000,000.

It must be much greater now because the past year has witnessed enormous activities in this direction. As for Canada, the Canadian investment in American securities in 1949 amounted, according to Lederer, to $480,000,000; in 1954, to $910,000,000. These figures appear very low in 1956 but give the general trend sufficiently to indicate what it is.

Surely, there can be no objection to the investment of foreign funds in American industry if we know who owns the funds. The principle objection is to anonymous ownership, particularly of defense plants which could be a peril to the country. The Swiss investment is totally anonymous and could even represent foreign governments. The Canadian investment often represents American money operating through Canada to evade American taxes.

All this calls for getting at the facts, which are very difficult to obtain.

Lawrence's Pitching Slump Has Hurt Cincinnati Chances

By BEN OLAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Figuring the major league pennants races: The pitching slump of Brooks Lawrence is one of the reasons the Cincinnati Redlegs have dropped off the pennant pace. The big right-hander has won only three games and lost eight since reaching a 13-0 mark on July 17. He's been defeated in his last four outings.

Bill Skovron of the New York Yankees has managed only six hits in his last 44 times at bat (.136) and his batting average has dipped from .325 to .304. During the 13-game famine, the husky first baseman has driven in only two runs and had only one home run.

Herb Score of Cleveland, who established a major league strike-out record for a first year man in 1955, is ahead of that pace this year.

Campanella Hits To Spark Win Over Milwaukee

Brooklyn Sure Now It Can Retain League Pennant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's big catcher who wins the most valuable-player award every other season and then slumps in between, is following the same old script again. But with one ad lib from his bat, the Dodgers are surer than ever they'll retain the National League pennant.

Campy, at 35, the highest paid Dodger ever, won the NL's MVP award in 1951, '53 and '55. But he was a "bust" in '50, '52 and '54. And at the moment, true to bling along with a .220 bat average with a scrawny 57 runs batted in.

Things have been so bad for the big guy this season, Milwaukee decided to walk Jackie Robinson — loading the bases with two out — to get to Campy with the score tied 3-3 in the eighth inning Monday. The Braves were speculating in percentages. Campy hadn't hit in his last 11 at bats.

He now has one hit in his last 12 at bats — a lined single that scored three runs and lifted the Braves into a 6-3 victory and whitened the Braves' first-place edge to two games once more.

It was the only game scheduled in the NL, leaving the Braves two full games ahead of third place Cincinnati.

In the only American League game scheduled, Cleveland bopped Washington 5-2 as Bob Lemon hung up his 18th lifetime victory.

Campanella's single salvaged a split in the two-game set for the second place Dodgers and gave them a victory in their last game of the season in Milwaukee for a 4-7 record at County Stadium. It was there that the Dodgers had nailed the 1953 and 1955 pennants with victories on their last visit of the season.

This one carried no such guarantee. But after coming back from a 3-0 deficit, the Braves are sure they've got the flag in the sack. The Braves are still the team to beat, but now just one game back in the "lost" column the Brooklynians feel they can do it — helped along by an "at home" schedule to end the season. They figured they needed "only six or seven" victories on their current 11-game finale in the West this season and now they've won five of the first seven, with only four games left at Chicago against the last place Cubs.

Joe Adcock's 33rd home run, and his 11th against Brooklyn, and Bobby Thomson's 18th built the 3-0 Milwaukee lead against 20-game winner Don Newcombe, who has finished only one of his last four pitching starts, left for a pinch-hitter because of a tummy ache in the sixth when Duke Snider hit his 33th homer, a two-run shot, off Gene Conley to start the Brook revival.

Columbus Jets Player Bangs Four Homers

COLUMBUS (AP)—Curt Roberts is a little guy. Stands 5-8. Weighs 165. He's a second baseman who doesn't look like a power hitter. And he isn't—ordinarily. But Monday night he became only the fifth player in International League history to sock four home runs in one game. And he did it in seven innings, driving in six runs as the Columbus Jets defeated the Havana team by a 14-5 score.

Roberts had a single in four trips as Havana won the nightcap 5-2 to retain a 1½-game edge over the Jets for sixth place.

Since coming to the Jets in the Kansas City-Pittsburgh deal that sent shortstop Spook Jacobs to the Pirates on June 22, Roberts had hit only four home runs in 69 games. In five previous seasons in organized ball, he had hit only 29—never averaging six a season.

But the 27-year-old infielder really tore into 'em Monday night. Two of the homers came with one on. The other two were solo shots — one an inside-the-park job.

No one had slugged four in one IL game since 1938 when Bob Seeds did it for Newark, then a league member, at Buffalo.

Russ Arlett did it twice in one season playing for Baltimore, another departed member. He slammed 'em all against Reading, on the road June 1, 1932, and at home, July 4.

The only other IL slugger to do it were Bill Botenous of Buffalo, against Wilkes-Barre in 1895; and Rochester's George Kelly, against Reading in 1919.

Wants 'Fiery Guy' To Head Detroit Team

DETROIT (AP)—Fred Knorr, who becomes president of the Detroit Tigers Oct. 1, says the manager of the 1957 Tigers "will be a fiery, active guy who will inspire the players and get out there on the field and fight for them."

The Detroit radio executive said, however, that "there is no inside track" as far as managerial candidates are concerned. He did not rule out the possibility the present manager, Bucky Harris, would be back for another season.

As many as seven possible successors to Harris have been mentioned publicly.

The names mentioned prominently so far as a possible successor to Harris include: Paul Richards, general manager and team manager of the Washington Nationals.

Charlie Grimm, released earlier in the season as manager of the Milwaukee Braves.

Phil Rizzuto, long-time New York Yankee shortstop given his unconditional release last week.

Billy Hitchcock, the Tigers' third base coach, and Jack Tighe, first base and bullpen coach.

Kluszewski Still Confident Redlegs Can Capture Flag

CINCINNATI (AP)—Cincinnati's Redlegs, are still generating pennant fever, but it's cooled off a little with the Reds in third place. Four games away from the National League leaders.

Manager Birdie Tebbets is still concentrating on each game instead of looking further ahead, but the players have considerable confidence in getting a flag.

"I think we can win it," slugger Ted Kluszewski said. "We have been on top and close all season. We know what it's like and we can smell it."

Third place Cincinnati was idle Monday but moved up to four games away from the league-leading Milwaukee Braves on second place Brooklyn's 6-3 win over the Braves.

Tebbetts still has pitching worries on his mind after the Redlegs used seven hurlers in Sunday's split of a double header with Philadelphia.

"We can score the runs if we can just find somebody to hold the other team," he said.

Chico Homers Twice To Lead Tribe Victory

BALTIMORE (AP)—Chico Carrasquel, who hit a total of only 32 home runs in six full seasons with the Chicago White Sox, hit two homers Monday night to provide the punch that won Cleveland a 5-2 victory over the Washington Nationals.

Carrasquel, who hadn't had a home run in four weeks, smashed one in the second inning off Hal Griggs after Jim Hegan had walked. His next time up, in the fifth, Chico increased the Tribe's lead to 3-0 with another home run.

Both homers went into the left field bleachers and raised Carrasquel's total of round-trip clouts for the season to seven.

Besides his two home runs, Carrasquel produced a double in the seventh, went to third on a single by Bob Lemon and scored on a force play.

The other Tribe run was Rocky Colavito's 17th home run. It was hit off reliever Bucky Stewart in the sixth inning.

Lemon, winning his 17th victory against 11 losses, allowed eight hits and Washington scored a run against him in the seventh on Roy Sievers' double, a long fly and a grounder.

The Nats' second run camebases, and a run-forcing walk.

Gibson and Norris returned to Chicago Monday night after giving Robinson a deadline to meet "our offer."

Experts Advise Soil Testing Should Precede Lime In Fall

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Midwestern farmers can get the biggest return for their money by liming their soils this fall, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in citing statements by Corn Belt agronomists.

Lime added in the fall has a longer time to sweeten acid soils, the committee points out. That can mean better legume stands next spring and increased efficiency from the fertilizers a farmer uses to boost crop yields and cut costs of production.

"First step," says the committee, "is to have your soil tested to see how much lime is actually needed. This takes out the guesswork and the hazard of overliming. Too much lime on sandy loam or loam soil may cut down the availability of needed plant nutrients."

The committee stresses, also, that lime by itself cannot do the whole job of soil building.

"Liming is simply the first step," says the committee. "Lime has to be teamed up with nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer, where needed, to give the best long range, crop-boosting results."

The committee lists these advantages of fall liming: 1—more time for the job; 2—a firmer footing for trucks and machinery; 3—faster deliveries; 4—a greater choice of fields to lime than in the spring.

some helpful tips on meat cookery at a big State Fair meats display in the Family Living Center on the state fairgrounds. The state fair opened last Friday and continues through next Friday.

The display, 26 feet long and 14 feet deep, shows fairgoers sides of beef, pork and lamb as well as retail cuts of each. A daily drawing will give visitors a chance at a prize.

Another display feature is an exhibit of champion barrow carcasses from the Ohio State carcass barrow show, starting Tuesday and continuing for the remainder of the fair.

Leaflets on meat cookery are available to all visitors. Last year more than 45,000 persons visited the meats display, according to Robert D. Havener, Ohio State University extension meats specialist.

The display is sponsored by the National Livestock and Meat board, The Ohio State University and the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service.

If you can't be sure of having enough moisture each year to give you a good corn crop, you should consider planting grain sorghums instead of corn.

That's the opinion of C. N. Hittle of the agronomy department at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Hittle doesn't believe that grain sorghums can compete with corn where soil and weather conditions normally produce a good corn crop. However, it might be one way to use diverted acres.

Results of College of Agriculture studies show that grain sorghums should be of special interest to you if you farm the sandy soils and other types of soil in that area that do not annually produce good corn yields.

Grain sorghums are drought and heat resistant, so you can expect them to make a better crop than corn under those conditions.

Another advantage is that you can plant the sorghums when it is too late to plant corn or soybeans.

You should plant grain sorghums only when the soil is warmed to about 70 degrees, which is about 10 to 20 days after corn planting time. A good rule for you to follow is to plant just late enough for the variety to mature before frost.

Latin Americans Getting Much Money In U.S.

Businessmen Look Southward As Pace In Europe Slows

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Trade and investment money are flowing faster today along a two way street between the United States and Latin America.

Many American businessmen look southward where the rate of industrial growth is on the upbeat while the pace in Western Europe slackens a bit.

Trade between this nation and those to the south is running at seven billion dollars a year, a Pan American-Grace Airways official says. He predicts that will double in 20 years.

The U.S. Department of Commerce reports Americans are investing 300 million dollars a year in Latin America — almost half of it in new manufacturing plants. One big reason: returns often are twice or more what they are here.

Another: most Latin-American countries permit free ownership of foreign securities and free export of their national currency, while in many other places Americans must wait to get their earnings out in any form.

Much American investment has been in developing oil and mineral resources and the returns have been juicy. But there's been a postwar trend toward setting up subsidiaries of U.S. manufacturing companies, to get around any restrictions on dollar spending and to bring production close to expanding markets.

And retail trade with a Yankee flavor is increasing. Example: Sears Roebuck has put 33 million dollars in new stores throughout Latin America and is teaching the people to make some of the goods carried. Celanese, which has five plants in Mexico, uses local raw materials to win popularity.

This isn't all one way. The U.S. Commerce Department reports that Latin investments in this country, both private and governmental, now top three billion dollars. Last year Latin Americans bought 17 million dollars worth of U.S. corporate stocks to bring their holdings to 484 million.

Reporter Should Have Waited Before Visiting Kim Novak

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Kim Novak, a bona fide movie star now, has taken her first apartment since coming to Hollywood — and I, for one, wished she still lived at the Y. W. C. A.

As every dyed-in-the wool fan knows, Kim is a famous alumna of the Studio Club. That's an inexpensive home-away-from-home for pretty young girls who want to make a name for themselves in Hollywood. It's also, as a department of the Y. W. C. A., a no-foes land.

The dishes were all piled in the sink or stacked on the kitchen floor. All dirty, of course.

"Wouldn't you know?" she moaned. "My first party and the maid turns up sick."

It was a sight to make any self-respecting maid sick.

"You know I'm Bohemian we'll clean up these dishes quick," she added, whipping out two aprons.

By the time she had tied the last bow on my apron, I got the whole horrible impact of her use of the pronoun "we".

Three hours and a hundred or more dishes later, she beamed. "I'm going to tell your wife what a good disher wiper you are."

I got news for Kim Novak. She's never going to see my wife again if I can help it.
